Real Education.
Earthquakes From Holes.
How to Find Gold.
De Valera's Victory.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HODGE, Cal., Feb. 20.

ACROSS THE CONTINENT, and over the desert, to groups of listening ranch children, Damrosch's concert came here yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. It began at 11 in New York.

Wagner's "Flying Dutchman." Liszt's music picture of St. Francis preaching to the birds, and his Second Rhapsody, were admirably introduced and explained by Prof. Damrosch, and beautifully played by his orchestra.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY, which has the intelligence to select and the generosity to pay for this series of concerts, renders a great service to education, and the directors of General Electric are entitled to public thanks.

Fathers and mothers and all school directors should have their children hear these Friday morning concerts that, alone, are worth many times the cost of any radio set.

THE UNITED STATES navy submarine S-48 discovers in the Caribbean Sea a hole almost five miles deep that proves to have been the center of the earthquake area in the recent Santiago earthquake disaster.

In other words, the banks, or sides, of that great hole, caving in, probably caused the trembling of surrounding earth masses that we call "earthquake." It is known that such deep "sea holes," with very steep sides, exist near the coast of Japan, causing frequent earthquakes in that country.

IT IS ENCOURAGING news, for it means that in ages to come men will provide against earthquakes, as they now provide against landslides in mountain passes. They are doing that now, in the blue cut of the Calon Pass, near this place. Giant submarines, strong enough to bear the water's weight, scouting on the sea floor, will level off the steepest, most dangerous gorges in the ocean's depths.

High explosives, held down by the unyielding water, will be doubly effective in such work.

FOOLISH DOUBTERS will say it can never be done. They also said men would never fly, iron steamboats would not float, and one Congressman was turned out by his constituents "because he was fool enough to believe in telegraph and vote money to try it."

What men can imagine, they can do.

TWO GOLD ITEMS.

First, to find gold in these days, select some giant "batholith" and hunt around its base. A "batholith" is a mass of granite, protruding from the earth, with a jagged top showing the effects of intense heat and reaching, sometimes, hundreds of miles down into the earth.

MILLIONS OF YEARS ago, these "batholiths" forced their way up through rock lying about them, volcanic heat helping the process, and the gold came up with them. It is not in the granite, says the learned Prof. Emmons, of the University of Minnesota, "but nearby, usually in the rocks through which the molten granite pushed, rich deposits of gold are frequently found within a few miles of the granite outcrops."

Such deposits are those in Canada, Southern Rhodesia, Siberia and Western Australia. But it is gold mining for big business, not for the little man.

GOLD ITEM number two.

The American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, in New York, is told that dentists bury every year nine million dollars worth of gold in the teeth of their patients. Little of that ever gets back into circulation, and, in about twelve hundred years, dentists could use up as much gold as there is now, for money, in all the world.

However, there is gold everywhere, including endless billions of dollars worth in the ocean waters. We may never learn to extract that, although nothing is impossible. But the annual gold production is so great that the amount needed for gold teeth, watches and wedding rings can easily be spared.

DE VALERA, the fighting Irish radical who says Ireland should not recognize King George or England in any way, has won a great victory in the Irish elections. His party, Fianna Fail, leads the Cosgrave party and De Valera may succeed Cosgrave as president of the Irish Free State.

The ability of De Valera, who was once sentenced to death, and his present victory are not surprising. He had an Irish mother, and it is said his Spanish father was of Jewish blood, which makes a good combination. The famous Mr. Dooley says every Irishman needs a Jewish partner. De Valera has that combination, within himself.

NATIONAL, STATE and city governments are discharging unnecessary employes, or talking about it. Chicago plans to drop 2,500 workers, Los Angeles more than 800, other cities in proportion.

It is true that public employes, appointed by politicians to pay political debts, tend to increase like barnacles on a ship. It is not just that taxpayers carry, as they do, tens of thousands of unnecessary salaries.

But fairness demands that men and women trained to only one kind of work, and not responsible for the waste, should have a reasonable time in which to readjust their lives, at least, a few months of salary continued, or a longer period on half pay.

BELL FACES 2 LINKED IN KILLING

Sleuth Confessing Donohoe Murder in Secret Meeting With Police 'Accomplices'

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 20.—Somewhere in Western Pennsylvania today Anthony W. (Tony) Bell, former Fayette County detective and alleged confessor to a murder for which he has been acquitted, is having an unlooked for reunion with two of the three men he named as accomplices in the slaying of Constable Jack Donohoe. The other two are Cosmos Stangoni and R. C. Bledsoe, another police officer.

It is a secret rendezvous shrouded in mystery by state police authorities who arranged it as a means of learning more about the racket killing which allegedly prompted the suicide of District Attorney A. D. Rosenberg and kept this county seething with rumors for three years.

STATE POLICE ACT

Two of the most trusted officers in state police service — Capt. Jacob Mauk and Capt. Albert Carlson—have taken over the investigation, having arranged yesterday for the secret removal of Bell from Buffalo, N. Y., where he had been held on federal charges of impersonating an officer and extortion.

Bell was turned over to state police by Fayette County's District Attorney, Wade K. Newell, to whom Bell is said to have made a signed confession of his complicity in the Donohoe murder

PAT M'DERMOTT TRIES SUICIDE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Pat McDermott, convicted as "trigger man" in the murder of Editor Don Hallett at Canton in 1926, unsuccessfully tried to hang himself at Ohio Penitentiary yesterday, prison officials said today.

Guards found him hanging in his cell, unconscious, and rushed him to the prison hospital, where restoratives revived him, according to Miss Amanda Thomas, daughter of Warden Preston E. Thomas.

McDermott was reported to be completely recovered from the suicide effort.

Baby Girl Born To Bessie Love

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The role of motherhood has been given Bessie Love, screen actress, who in private life is Mrs. William Hawks, wife of a Beverly Hills broker. Mrs. Hawks yesterday gave birth to a 7¼-pound girl. The baby has been named Patricia.

Miss Love was one of the first actresses of the silent picture days to gain fame in talking pictures.

International News Service.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 20.—Pleading for uninstructed delegates to his party's national convention in Chicago this summer, Jouett Shouse, Democratic National Executive Committee Chairman, called the roll of Democratic presidential nominee material in an address before the State Democratic Committee today.

Leading off with the name of Speaker of the House Jack Garner, of Texas, Shouse listed a dozen or more Democratic leaders, and said he could wholeheartedly support any one. The Democratic party, he asserted, is today rich in presidential material. He predicted the party

WITH THE JAPANESE ARMY AT WOOSUNG CREEK, north of Shanghai, Feb. 20.—(3:45 p. m.)—Four Japanese destroyers now are cruising up and down the Whangpoo River shelling the Woosung forts and the Chinese land positions, rocking the countryside with the detonations of the bursting shells.

Fires now have broken out in the forts, while a column of smoke a half mile wide rises for a mile into the air from buildings burning to the west of Woosung village.

Naval shells are dropping from the Yangtze and lower Whangpoo across land into the walled city of Paoshan, while to the left of Woosung village comes the sound of intensive machine-gun fire, indicating Gen Uyeda is endeavoring to remove the danger to his right flank.

SPEED REINFORCEMENTS

At 1 o'clock this afternoon all the Japanese forces in the Changwapen Railway yards under Capt. Kita were rushed to Woosung Creek.

At the same time fresh troops arrived in trucks from the International Settlement equipped with Woosung Afire but Forts Hold Out; Chinese Lines Shattered.

By DIXON ROSTE

International News Service.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—Japanese troops late this afternoon captured the village of Kiangwan, six miles north of the International Settlement, boundary, after hours of fierce fighting that marked the beginning of their general offensive to drive the Chinese from Shanghai.

The Chinese center is slowly falling back.

Chinese resistance is weakening in the Kiangwan area, north of Chapei, tonight, but the defenders of Woosung, at the northern end of the 16-mile battle front, are still clinging stubbornly to their positions.

Although the village is in flames, the Chinese flag still flutters from the forts.

SETTLEMENT SHELLED

Many shells have fallen in the International Settlement in 13 hours of artillery dueling. Two Chinese have been killed and several wounded within the Settlement boundaries.

One Chinese civilian was killed and two wounded inside the defense lines of the 31st United States Infantry.

A shell exploded in a mill room which one company of United States Marines had just vacated and which another was just about to occupy.

No one was hurt, because of the changing of guards, but bunks were broken to pieces and windows throughout the building were smashed.

The Chinese artillery at Woosung shelled one of the Japanese destroyers in the river, killing the captain and five men.

Chinese military headquarters issued a bulletin stating that three Japanese tanks wrecked the Kiangwan area, but that later they were blown up as they drove over a specially-mined road while they were pursuing retreating Chinese.

Japanese reinforcements were rushed and pushed the Chinese out of Kiangwan village, swinging their flank and forcing them back in a northwesterly direction.

COUNTER-ATTACK

The Chinese counter-attacked and regained a foothold in Kiangwan, but were driven out again in fresh fighting and the village was completely in Japanese hands at 7 o'clock tonight.

Meanwhile four Japanese destroyers are keeping up a steady bombardment of the Woosung forts and their outer trench defenses. The forts, however, were still holding out tonight, though the Japanese claimed bombing planes had destroyed Chinese trenches.

The tower was shaken by repeated bombs landing close to the base, but none hitting it. The wooden structure at the top was splintered by sprays of machine gun bullets and the explosives. Three hours after the attack on the tower began, The Chinese still were fighting pluckily.

AMERICANS QUIT DANGER ZONES

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—All American civilians were in comparatively safe zones today when the Japanese began their smashing attack with artillery fire and aerial bombardment to drive out the Chinese from Shanghai.

They were removed from the dangerous districts of Hongkew and Yangtzepoo of the International Settlement, in grave peril since the heavy offensive began, across the Soochow Creek into the defense areas of the United States and Great Britain in the Settlement.

Women and children from the threatened positions all had been evacuated when the battle began.

Dr. J. C. McCracken, University of Pennsylvania graduate and former football player, supervised removal of 100 Chinese patients from St. Luke's Hospital in ambulances to neutral territory.

The Inland Chinese mission harbored three American women teachers and missionaries, and 40 Chinese students who were taken from areas menaced by the fighting.

Conviction Upheld In Lingle Slaying

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The appeal of Leo V. Brothers, St. Louis gangster, from his conviction for the murder of Alfred Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, was denied yesterday by the Illinois Supreme Court. The court upheld Brothers' conviction and 14 years prison sentence for the slaying.

Bullet-Riddled Body Of Trapper Returned

AKLAVIK, N. W. T., Feb. 20.—(Universal)—The body of Albert Johnson, the mad trapper, was brought here from the grim, snow-covered Yukon trail, where he failed in his last stand against the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Bullet-riddled and emaciated, his body indicated he was near exhaustion when possemen's bullets brought him down. Johnson killed one officer and wounded two others before he was slain.

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Fierce fighting at Shanghai today partially disrupted cable communications between Shanghai and Manila.

Will Rogers Backing Garner for President

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Will Rogers is backing Representative John Garner, of Texas, against the field for the Democratic nomination for President. The cowboy humorist said:

"Congressman Garner is the man of the hour now. He's going to be nominated. He'll win, too, if he stays a Democrat."

Regarding the prospects for his friend, Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, Will said:

How Gibbons Sends Rapid Descriptions of Battle

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Floyd Gibbons, covering the Shanghai fighting for International News Service, plunged into the battle lines today and made a complete circuit of the war area, filing his rapid-fire dispatches from the nearest communication points.

Leaving his headquarters in a hotel on the bund in the International Settlement, he first surveyed the battle area from an observation tower above the Japanese air field north of the Settlement, where he witnessed a terrific panorama of war extending over a 90-degree arc from north to south."

Two hours later, he joined the Japanese Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda at the latter's new field headquarters in the Hung Dah cotton mills.

Leaving this post, he pressed northward through shell fire to Woosung Creek, where he reported four Japanese destroyers cruising up and down the Whangpoo River, shelling the Woosung forts and the Chinese land positions.

'Tommy' Manville Guarded Against Kidnap Plot

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Threatened by letters from a kidnap band seeking to extort money, Thomas F. Manville Jr., heir to the millions of his "asbestos king" father, was furnished a police squad today on direction of Police Commissioner Mulrooney.

Secrecy was maintained by Manville about the details of the demands made on him. He admitted he reported them to police.

When his father, founder of the Johns-Manville Corporation, died, Manville was bequeathed $10,000,000 of the $23,000,000 estate.

"Tommy" Manville for a time was a resident of Pittsburgh, having been sent here to learn the workings of his father's asbestos company. His first marriage ended here in 1923.

long bamboo scaling ladders whose cross bars were crudely lashed with ropes.

The reinforcements also brought large slabs of cork which with the ladders appear to be intended to carry the Japanese troops over Woosung Creek towards the forts.

During the height of today's naval bombardment of Woosung American tourists, including women and children, were given the thrill of their lives if not the fright aboard the Dollar liner President Lincoln outward bound from Shanghai.

Passing the fort the President Lincoln found herself with a Japanese destroyer a hundred yards ahead, and another the same distance behind. Both were loosening broadsides into the Chinese positions.

LINER RUNS GANTLET

The tide was running out and the President Lincoln's captain was eager to get past the fighting area safely. He kept whistling for the shelling to hold off long enough for the ship to pass.

Fortunately the Chinese didn't return the Japanese fire.

From the decks of the President Lincoln the American tourists got a clear picture of the war's desolating effects on the shore 100 yards away where great stone walls were shattered and pock-marked from the effects of the destroyers' aim, as well as from the naval planes.

Woosung village showed hardly a single house intact, while smoke from burning buildings added somberness to this distressing farewell picture the tourists carried away from China.

Gen. Uyeda established new field headquarters as the result of the westward advance of his lines.

RESISTANCE OVERCOME

Following house to house fighting behind the Kiangwan race course, the Japanese overcame the last Chinese resistance by noon. They entered the place half an hour later.

Despite the heavy bombing the high Chinese observation tower on the International race track was still standing.

A motor car containing American and British naval and military attaches was forced to turn back from near the Sino-Japanese fighting lines in the vicinity of Kiangwan race course because of heavy machine gun fire.

The automobile contained Capt. Hartigan, American naval attache; Col. Badham Thornhill, British military attache and Capt. William Mayer, assistant American military attache. As the car came close to the front lines, increasing outbursts of firing from the Japanese forces warned the party not to proceed farther.

The countryside facing the Japanese offensive presented at high noon a smoking, flat horizon in a terrible panorama of war extending over a 90-degree arc from north to south.

NEW MANCHU STATE IN REVOLT

By EDWARD S. HUNTER
Universal Service.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Feb. 20.—"Anguo" (land of peace) faced its first rebellion today just 24 hours after it made its bow to the world as a Japanese-supported Manchurian-Mongolian state, independent of China.

Japanese troops left here today to crush the revolt, which is centered near the Korean border. Gen. Wang Heh-Ling, who refused to join seven other Chinese war lords in signing the proclamation of independence, heads the movement.

He has 1,000 men behind him. They have wrecked a large section of the Kirin-Hunhua Railroad, burning 18 bridges.

BRITISH WATCH FIGHT IN CHINA

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Week-end holidays were cancelled today by members of the British cabinet sub-committee formed some time ago to keep a close eye on developments in the battle at Shanghai.

Members resolved to stay in or near London to take any action necessary in the emergency. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, presided over the sub-committee in the absence of Prime Minister MacDonald.

The Prime Minister, convalescing after an operation on one of his eyes, remained at his country home at Chequers, but he kept in closest touch with the developments at Shanghai.

The cabinet sent instructions to J. F. Brenan, British consul general, to do his utmost to insure the safety of British Nationals.

'NUMBERS' SOLD AT WINDOW

Gust Bardakas, proprietor of a hat cleaning and shoe shining establishment in Atwood street, near Forbes street, was sealed in a bay window selling Clearing House lottery tickets to persons on the sidewalk when County Detective Lawrence Kline and a squad arrived today, Kline reported.

Kline said it was "the most brazen law violation" he had ever encountered. The place is a block from Oakland Police Station.

Bardakas was arrested charged with maintaining a lottery, and will be given a hearing late today before Alderman T. A. Flanigan. Kline reported confiscating 20 lottery books and $7.41 cash. The raid was made on a complaint to District Attorney A. T. Park.

Applications Made For Treasury Bills

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Secretary Mills last night announced receipt of applications totaling $196,183,000 for the $60,000,000 tender of 91-day Treasury bills maturing May 25.

The highest bid was 99.377, equivalent to an annual interest rate of about 2.46. The lowest bid accepted was 99.307.

Diet Calls Hitler In Citizenship Quiz

WEIMAR, Germany, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, the Nazi leader, will be called before the Thuringian Diet in its investigation of his appointment as police commissioner in a small Thuringian town almost two years ago.

M'FADDEN RUNS FOR CONGRESS

TOWANDA, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Canton, fiery opponent of administration financial measures, yesterday announced his candidacy for re-election to the House from the Fifteenth District of Pennsylvania.

The announcement put an end to rumors he would run, with the support of the Pinchot organization, for United States Senator in opposition to James J. Davis.

It also indicated he would make no campaign for the presidency. Petitions to place his name in the North Dakota presidential primary were not filed in that state.

McFadden's entry makes the fight for the Republican nomination in the district three-cornered. He will oppose Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, and Frederick Rickenbacker, who has announced his candidacy on an anti-prohibition platform.

McFadden's charge in the House that President Hoover "sold out to Germany" when he arranged the moratorium cost him his patronage privileges in the district.

Congressman Raps Dry Funds as Waste

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Representative Igoe, of Illinois, yesterday criticized as a senseless waste of money the $11,369,500 appropriation for prohibition enforcement in the pending Justice Department bill.

The Chicago Democrat said he was "convinced the good citizens everywhere are anxiously awaiting the day when the membership of this House will show courage and good judgment" by approving either repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or modification of the Volstead act.

DRIVE SPEEDED TO RESTORE TRADE

Plans Perfected for Bond Issue to Bring Cash From Hoarders; Curb for Bears

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The government drive to restore prosperity to the country was several important steps ahead today, with effort continuing unabated.

The Glass-Steagall bill for the expansion of the federal reserve credit facilities, was through the Senate, amended before approval to extend its emergency provisions for two years instead of one, and with its new liberal rediscounting facilities open to all banks of the reserve system with a capitalization of $2,000,000 or less. Today it goes to conference for adjustment with the House. It will become law some time next week.

BABY BONDS'

Plans were near perfection in the Treasury for the special issue of small denomination bonds upon which the administration is depending in part for restoration to circulation of hoarded money, especially that held in small amounts. The bonds will go on sale March 7; they will mature in a year. Neither the total amount of the issue, nor the interest rate has been determined. These bonds are to be an integral part of the drive upon hoarding by the nation organization under Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago.

RAID ON BEARS

From President Hoover came word that the administration had engaged in a drive on stock exchange bear raiders, who he believes have been pulling investors into an "artificial depression" of security prices. The New York Stock Exchange will put into effect rules to curb short selling on March 1. The President told newspapermen at his Friday evening press conference that "individuals who use the facilities of the exchange for such purposes (bear raids) are not contributing to recovery of the United States."

Meantime, though less peaceably, congressional efforts for economy through consolidation of government activities were pushed forward. Party lines showed up clearly in this work, with Republicans sponsoring bills to effect the President's recommendations, and the Democrats sticking to their drive for consolidations in directions opposed by the chief executive.

8 ESCAPE FIRE OVER ROOF

Seven children of Mrs. Mary Kwake, 753 Kimball avenue, New Kensington, and a guest escaped from the burning Kwake home early today by sliding down a front porch roof to the ground.

Stanley, 22, aroused by crackling flames, found the stairway ablaze. He awoke his three brothers in the same room, Stephen, 12; John, 10, and Casimer, 7, and aided them onto the porch roof, where they lay clinging to the window sill.

Crawling along the roof to the bedroom occupied by his sisters, Virginia, 19; Sophia, 15, and their guest, Victoria Janor, 16, of Cleveland, O., Stanley broke the window and helped them out.

Led by Stanley they slid down the steep roof, one by one, dropping into his arms. A moment later Andrew Kwake, 24, who had been asleep in a rear room, made his way to the porch roof and leaped. Mrs. Kwake, police said, was visiting in Cleveland. The fire caused $3,000 damage to the two-story frame dwelling.

RELIEF NEEDS URGENT, SAYS LAFOLLETTE

Government Should Help Local Agencies Bear Their Burdens, Senator Asserts

The administration's plans for assistance to the unemployed were criticized by Senator Robert LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive, last night before members of Syria Temple at their testimonial to their new potentate, Karl Rex Hammers, in the William Penn Hotel.

The progressive leader, in defense of his national relief bill, recently defeated in the Senate, declared local agencies could not meet the problems created by unemployment.

He said federal aid to states, municipalities and counties is not a dole, but a means of enabling local governments to administer relief without running into bankruptcy.

He spoke on the same subject over the Sun-Telegraph radio station WCAE earlier in the evening.

The Senator declared the proposed loan to the railroads by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would not add to their total traffic. The roads need traffic, not credit, he said.

LaFollette was introduced by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell.

BELL FACES 2 'ACCOMPLICES'

nearly two weeks ago. Newell returned here in a state police car late yesterday, refusing to discuss the case beyond a perfunctory verification of the confession. He said Bell had made a "clean breast" of everything and when complete details of the confession were made public "everyone will believe him."

NEWELL DEFENDED BELL

Newell was chief counsel for Bell at the time of his trial before being elected District Attorney. Associated with him in the defense was Attorney H. S. Dumbauld. Newell said:

"Bell double-crossed us (his attorneys). Both Attorney Dumbauld and myself believed him absolutely innocent when we tried his case.

"I will prosecute him now, though, just as vigorously as I defended him, but of course I cannot bring him to trial again on a murder charge."

Newell today said that the investigation of the Donohoe murder did not indicate any political connections or reveal any "higher-ups."

Newell said:

"We are endeavoring to solve the Donohoe murder once and for all. Our investigation has been going on for several weeks, and is not near finished."

The fourth man named by Bell, it was reported, is not Glenn Allum, indicted in the murder, but never tried, and now under arrest on another charge.

Rumors linking public officials with racketeering have had three years to spread throughout the county and when the news that "Bell had talked" flashed through the city, rumors began anew.

UNDERWORLD GOSSIP

From an underworld source came whispers about two more "higher ups" in the booze racket. One, it was rumored, is a respected public official having the esteem of the citizenry; the other, a former public official, now retired to private life.

Bell, the persistent whispers reported, had frequently boasted of a source of income from another individual concerned in the case, but recently it was understood this source had suddenly ceased to exist.

One individual known in gangland parlance as a "rat" has boasted in underworld circles for many months of being "in the know" and on numerous occasions has given his own version (with gestures) of the killing of Donohoe.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure area that appeared over the plains states yesterday morning is now centered over the lower lake region with increased pressure and area. It covers practically all of the eastern half of the country. It is attended by clear skies and moderately cold weather. In the west there are low pressure centers over Alberta and south of New Mexico. They are producing considerable cloudiness but little precipitation, except over the southern states, where a rainfall area is rather widespread. The falling barometer is also causing rising temperature conditions over the plains states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 3.4 feet. Parkers Landing, 3.7 feet. No. 8 (Mon.), 9.9 feet. No. 7 (Pittsburgh), 12.8. Dam No. 4, 10.0. Dam No. 6, 8.9. Dam No. 10, 10.6, and Dam No. 12, 10.7. The dams are up.

SHOUSE LAUDS GARNER AS LEADER

would name the next President of the United States in its choice at Chicago, and declared the American people should not fetter their delegates to the convention with instructions.

PRIMARY CALLED

Despite Shouse's appeal, the state committee today called a presidential preferential primary for June 7. The committee ruled candidates may enter their names on the ballot by making application to the Secretary of State not later than 30 days before the primary.

Shouse was generous in praising Garner. He said:

"To refer first to a distinguished Southerner does not mean that I place hi mabove the other Democrats in the category of possible candidates, but I am glad here, as I have been glad elsewhere, to pay tribute to the sterling qualities of John N. Garner, speaker of the House, a Southerner by birth, breeding and tradition, a stalwart citizen not merely of one state, but of the country, who right now perhaps is doing more than any other one man through the service that he is rendering to make a record that will insure Democratic success.

PEER OF SPEAKERS

"With all due deference to other notable speakers of the House, in its entire history there has never been a condition of leaderchip comparable to that which Jack Garner has shown. With a majority of only five or six, through the force of his personality, through the qualities of his mind and heart, through the precision of his judgment, he has been able to put through in a time of stress and trial the most remarkable program of constructive legislation that was ever enacted within the same period."

Shouse also praised ex-Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia; Senator Joe Robinson, of Arkansas; Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee; Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi; Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois; Gov. George White and Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio; Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and ex-Gov. "Al" Smith, of New York; Newton D. Baker, Owen D. Young, Melvin A. Traylor, ex-Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and ex-Gov. James M. Cox, of Ohio, saying:

"Any one of these gentlemen I can support with all of the enthusiasm and earnestness that is in me."

QUOTES ROOSEVELT

Supporting his plea for unpledged delegates, Shouse observed that Gov. Roosevelt took issue with him on this matter recently, but quoted from a letter of Roosevelt which he said appeared in the press May 6, 1920, and in which he said Roosevelt appeared to favor unpledged delegates. Shouse said:

"It (the letter) was addressed to William W. Farley, chairman of the Democratic sate committee of New York. It's primary purpose was to oppose the unit rule on the New York delegation to the San Francisco convention. It closed with this sentence: 'Let the people feel that the Democratic choice was made in a real democratic way, by a free and frank interchange of opinion, with every man voting according to his own conscience, and we will have, in my judgment, a tremendous advantage at the very start of the campaign.'"

Woman Hurt in Fall Two Weeks Ago Dies

Mrs. Clara Williamson, 73, of 201 Maryland avenue, Millvale, died in the Homeopathic Hospital today of pneumonia, following a fractured hip suffered two weeks ago when she fell down stairs in her home, the Coroner reported.

TWO GIRLS AMONG VICTIMS OF PARK, HIGHWAY BANDITS

WOMAN ROUTS PROWLER WITH BULLETS

Rings, Watch, Purse Taken From Victim of Bridle Path Holdup; Man Slugged

Two women were among the victims in five holdups reported in the Pittsburgh district early today, and another with revolver shots routed a prowler who was attempting to enter her North Side home.

Four shots from the revolver of Mrs. May Clark, housekeeper for Peter Kruck, 1724 Monterey street, last midnight routed a prowler attempting to force a window on the first floor, she told police. The suspect escaped.

RINGS TAKEN

Four gunmen in an automobile held up Miss Frances Burke, of 1004 Homewood avenue, and her escort, William Sullivan, of 7148 Meade street, in their automobile parked in a bridle path in Highland Park.

They took Miss Burke's two diamond rings, valued at $150, a $50 wrist watch and her purse. From her companion they took $30 cash and a $50 watch.

A similar robbery was reported by D. Newman, of 224 Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, who told police he gave his watch to two bandits who held him up while he was parked in Highland Park.

Joseph Labritz, the motorman of an interurban Charleroi street car, was held up as he stopped his car at Snider stop, early today, according to police. The armed and masked bandit took $25 and his watch and escaped. There were no passengers on the car.

AUTOISTS ROBBED

Two motorists on the William Penn highway, near Wilkinsburg, were held up and robbed by an armed trio after their automobiles were forced to stop.

William Benz, of 2015 Delaware avenue, Swissvale, reported the thieves forced him to stop his car and robbed his unidentified girl companion of her wrist watch.

Later Lester Firestone, of 1926 Furlong street, reported the trio held him up in the same manner and escaped with a diamond pin and a watch. One of the thieves slugged him, he reported.

George Lane, the attendant of the Bellvedere gas station, Butler street, Etna, reported two gunmen held him up and robbed him of $17.

A ladies' diamond barpin, valued at $1,200 was stolen last night from a bedroom in the home of J. White, 2021 Wendover street, Squirrel Hill, police reported.

WOMAN ROBBED, TIED IN TUB

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—When three robbers entered the home of Mrs. Michael Nikolas she managed to keep her head above water and thereby saved her life although she lost jewelry valued at $2,000.

The Nikolas home had been guarded for three weeks by policemen after Mrs. Nikolas reported attempts recently had been made to enter it. She did not demur, accordingly, yesterday when three men claiming they were officers asked admission.

They bound her up and tied her in a bathtub into which a cold water faucet poured a steady stream until her mother returned. Only the woman's head was above the water when help finally arrived.

Admits Complicity In Florida Killing

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Chicago police, aided by private detectives and a Tampa, Fla., investigator, last night seized William Bailey, 32, and announced he confessed having been one of three men who kidnaped and slew J. B. Johnson, wealthy Tampa automobile dealer and real estate operator, 13 months ago.

Bailey waived extradition, they said, and was to be taken back to Florida today.

Killed Friend, Man Admits to Police

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—James Ray Williams, 45, was shot to death at his home here last night and police said his lifelong friend, Frank R. Bennett, had surrendered with the words: "I shot a man." He declined further explanation.

Williams, whose estranged wife and five children live near Bethany, Kan., was shot nine times. Bennett, about the same age, also is married and has six children.

TRYING OUT A CLINIC

DENTAL CLINICS OPEN MONDAY

A free clinic for children of Allegheny County, under auspices of the Odontological Society, and in conjunction with the General Health Council, will open in the Downtown Monday. Most of the work will be on the children's "baby teeth" and the six year molars.

Four dentists will be on duty each day with the exception of Saturdays and Sundays. More than 100 have volunteered.

The General Health Council will supervise the clinic, supplying patients recommended by social agencies and school authorities. The Jenkins Arcade Company has donated a suite of rooms. The equipment is loaned by dental dealers.

The Odontological Society is purchasing all the material used at manufacturers' cost. The Emergency Association of Allegheny County will furnish the necessary clerical help.

Each child will receive a tooth brush and paste and be instructed on care of the teeth. Similar clinics are being established throughout Western Pennsylvania.

Boy Admits Killing Brooklyn Girl, 5

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A 15-year-old Negro boy confessed, police said last night, to the slaying of Florence McDonnell, 5, who was found strangled to death in the cellar of a vacant Brooklyn house.

The young Negro, Robert Smalls, was quoted by police as saying he killed the girl because she "snitched" on him when he played truant from school.

Three Boys Accused Of Robbing Man, 95

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 20.—Theodore Dzmura, 17; Walter Welty, 18, and George Simko, all of Leisenring, are being held by state police in connection with the holdup of Joseph S. Thompson, 95-year-old Frick pensioner, at his home.

Washington Fined For Contempt Of Court

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—George Washington was once fined for contempt of court.

Carl Smith, Steubenville attorney, says an ancestor, Squire John Berry, of Washington County, Pennsylvania, did the fining.

Washington filed a complaint against Scotch-Irish squatters and Squire Berry, who heard the case, decided in their favor, according to Smith.

Washington is said to have termed the decision "an outrage," whereupon the Squire assessed him $10 for contempt.

W.-J. COLLEGE FIRE QUELLED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 20.—A fire in the faculty room of Washington and Jefferson College main building was extinguished last midnight before it gained headway.

A Pittsburgh interurban car standing on East Beau street ignited early today and was almost wholly destroyed.

JAIL TROLLEY PACE SETTER

Whether street cars may lawfully exceed a speed of 20 miles an hour, a man who says he is John A. Law, 42, a silk stocking salesman, of 239 McKee place, is determined to find out today.

At least one street car was limited to that speed or less last night in its run from Woods Run avenue to the downtown. Law, driving his car in front of the trolley, saw to that.

For that he was arrested and that was just exactly what he wanted to happen to him, he told North Side police. He announced that he intended to make a "test case" of the incident.

Motorman James Walton, of a Brighton road trolley, had Law arrested after the latter's automobile had preceded him at a slow pace from North Side to the city, and from the city to North Side on the return trip.

He will be arraigned today in Traffic Court.

Hurling Sugar Bowl Not Cruel, Court Says

MEDIA, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—It's not "cruel treatment" to throw a sugar bowl at one's wife and threaten to shoot her, Judge MacDade, in effect, decided in refusing a master's recommendation that Mrs. Margaret L. Simon, 29, be granted a divorce from John F. Simon, Jr., 18, on those grounds.

WASHINGTON'S PORTRAIT WILL BE PUBLISHED

The essay contest on George Washington's Farewell address, ending its first week today, will enter the second episode tomorrow with the publication of "The Atheneum Portrait" in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Already many essays have come in from boys and girls, under 21, who are not in school, while the school children of many institutions in city, county and adjoining counties of Western Pennsylvania are working at the test.

The contest lasts until April 4. The classifications and prizes:

The William Randolph Hearst gold cup and $100 for the best essay, not to exceed 1,000 words in length, in any class by any person up to the age of 21 years.

For the best essay, not to exceed 1,000 words in length by any person between the age of 16 and 21, in or out of school, the Hearst gold medal; for second, silver medal, and third, bronze medal.

For the best essay not to exceed 500 words in length by any child in any high school, gold medal for first, silver for second and bronze for third.

For the best essay not to exceed 400 words in length by any child in any junior high school, a gold medal; for second, a silver medal, and for third, a bronze medal.

For the best essay not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in the grammar grades, a gold medal, with silver medal for second and bronze medal for third.

In each of the classes 2, 3, 4 and 5, there will be awarded 100 diplomas for honorable mention for the 100 best essays produced in each class after the first, second and third prizes have been awarded.

BOARD TO PICK TEACHERS BY NEW RANK

Revised Eligibility Lists To Rule in Appointment, Promotion Applications

Teachers in Pittsburgh public schools hereafter will be appointed and promoted only in accordance with newly-prepared eligibility lists adopted by the Board of Public Education yesterday in accordance with the Pennsylvania school code.

The action of the School Board provides that all applicants for initial appointments will be ranked in accordance with the results of a written examination, as well as training and experience.

When teachers are to be recommended for initial appointment on promotion the name standing at the top of the proper eligibility lists will be given first consideration, as a result of the board's action.

The board also voted to grant permits for the use of school auditoriums without payment of the ordinary rental charge to "bona fide non-political organizations" until the close of the present school term, on account of "the emergency now existing."

Mrs. G. M. Glines, member of the board of education of Portland, Ore., here to study Pittsburgh schools, complimented the board on the conditions of schools in this city.

WOMEN DROWN 5, KILL SELVES

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mabel Randall, 36, "unable to go on" because of despondency over her separation from her husband, yesterday drowned her two children in a bathtub and took her own life with poison.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Hurling her three small children into the icy waters of Tumbling Lake, in the Bridgeton City Park, a distracted mother yesterday leaped from a bridge and drowned with them.

The bodies of the mother, Mrs. Mary V. Cresci, 42, of Vineland, and the three children, Leo, 8; Sanford, Jr., 4, and Mary, 6, were recovered. Friends of Mrs. Cresci said she had been ill, but had not given indication of extreme despondency.

Veteran Ohio Packet Skipper Dies at 62

Shaw Has Alibi In Auto Crash--Slippery Road

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Feb. 20.—(Universal)—George Bernard Shaw, famous writer, injured when his automobile crashed at Mossel Bay, has offered an alibi for his driving.

Slippery roads and not his maneuvering of the wheel caused the mishap, he said.

Shaw was hurt when his head struck the windshield. Mrs. Shaw was more seriously hurt as the car ran off the road into a ditch. An injured ankle was giving her considerable trouble last night.

Shaw's return to England has been postponed to the middle of March.

RIVAL WINNER, UTILITY SUITS COSGRAVE SAYS NOT EXPLAINED

DUBLIN, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—The Fianna Fail party, led by Eamon de Valera, old-time Radical, apparently had been placed at the head of the Free State government today as nearly final returns in the Dail elections gave the De Valera group a comfortable majority over the Government party of President William T. Cosgrave.

"It looks as if the Fianna Fail is in."

Four-fifths of the seats in the Dail were filled as follows:

Fianna Fail, 62; Labor, 7; Government, 46, and Independents, 14.

Labor members of the Dail are expected to vote with De Valera, while the Independents would cast their votes with the Government.

There was no doubt the Fianna Fail would have a plurality, and members of the party eagerly looked toward the gaining of nine more seats, which would give them a majority.

President of Lions Hurt in Train Crash

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Seven cars of the northbound M. K. & T. Blue Bonnett passenger train left the rails near here last night, injuring two passengers, Julien Hyer, president of Lions International, Fort Worth, and Arthur O. Creasey, Chicago. H. L. Newell died from a paralytic stroke while surveying the wrecked cars. Railroad officials said a split switch apparently caused the derailment.

John A. McCann, Pittsburgh representative of general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and other government officials declined to discuss the actions in assumpsit filed yesterday in Federal Court by the government against the Philadelphia Company and three of its subsidiaries, pending the filing of statements of claims. McCann has represented the bureau in many tax litigations that originated in the Pittsburgh district.

The other defendant companies are the Duquesne Light Company, Equitable Gas Company and Philadelphia Oil Company. The first two are among companies with which City Council is endeavoring to agree on a reduction of rates to the public.

Neither United States Attorney Louis E. Graham nor McCann revealed when statements of claims would be filed. Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, is out of the city until Tuesday, and other officials were reticent on the suits.

Probers of Student Drinking Involve 4

MEDIA, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A committee of seven juniors and seven seniors appointed by the Rev. W. H. Michaels, principal of the Media High School, to investigate student drinking at a play last week, has concluded its investigation and found that four pupils were involved. Its report will be submitted to the Board of Education next week.

Gang Gun Target Gets Extortion Term

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Joseph L. Rao, 30, who police said was the target of gunmen who killed Michael Vengalli, 5, in West One Hundred and Seventh street last July, was convicted yesterday on a charge of conspiring to commit the crime of extortion. He was given an indeterminate penitentiary term with a three-year limit.

Guatemala Executes Communist Plotter

GUATEMALA CITY, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Juan Pablo Wainwright was executed yesterday on charges of having participated in a Communist plot against the state. Six other Communists were liberated by order of President Ubico.

DUCHESS READY TO SEE PRINCE MARRIED

Marie Leaving New York for Wedding of Royal Son To Swedish Commoner

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Grand Duchess Marie, tall stately Russian emigre, whose life has been jammed with strange experiences, is preparing for another adventure, stranger in some ways than any of the rest.

She will sail in a week to be present when the final chapter is written in a fairy tale that came true—the story of a pretty young girl who marries a prince.

In a little London registry office on March 9 the daughter of a Swedish commoner, Karin Nissvandt, beautiful 22-year-old blonde, will become the bride of her childhood sweetheart, handsome, serious-looking Prince Lennart, 22-year-old son of the Grand Duchess.

To the Grand Duchess the ceremony will mean more than the last chapter in a pretty fairy tale of real life, for it will recall her own strange wedding 24 years ago.

WILL SEE EX-MATE

At least one other member of the Swedish royal family will be present in that registry office—Prince William, the father of young Lennart, the man whom the Grand Duchess married when she was a girl of 17.

They have not seen each other since 1913, when their marriage was annulled. They have not even communicated with each other in those 19 years.

The wedding of Marie, frail Russian beauty, and dashing young Prince William was not of their own choosing. It was arranged for them, solely for political reasons.

But when they discovered their mistake the Grand Duchess sought an annulment, even though such a step was unprecedented in court circles. It finally was granted.

LEFT SMALL SON

Marie left Stockholm and her 5-year-old son, her only child, was brought up by Queen Victoria of Sweden. It was then that the Grand Duchess began to have strange experiences one after another—adventures new to a Romanoff. She was a nurse at the front. She was in Russia during the revolution. In Paris she made her first attempt at earning a living.

Three years ago she came to America and started to make her own way in thoroughly democratic fashion, writing books and dictating women's styles.

The words that make the Prince and his pretty fiancee husband and wife will mean, for young Lennart the loss of his title and the possibility of succession to the throne.

STEPDAUGHTER HELD IN KILLING

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 20.—Mrs. Lorena Hay, 22-year-old farm wife, was in the county jail here today while deputy sheriffs investigated the killing of her stepfather, Benjamin Sanford, in his Berlin Center home last night.

Witnesses said Sanford, intoxicated, brandished a pick-ax over the young wife, and that she shot in self-defense.

Sanford's wife, his son and a girl who lived with the family were arrested and held as material witnesses.

Mrs. Hay's husband went to Wisconsin some time ago seeking work and she had since been living with the Sanfords.

Mrs. Gompers Hits Divorce Laws 'Unfair to Men'

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Samuel Gompers, widow of the fighting labor leader, is entering upon a crusade to give men a better break in divorce laws.

Her face resolute and still youthful in its frame of snowy hair, she explained legislation proposed by the National Divorce Reform League, which has a membership of 22,000. In her own views changes should be even more drastic, she said.

The league proposes one law that no childless wife under 25 shall be awarded alimony. It advocates also that no alimony shall accrue while a man is in prison for not paying that already owed, and that no alimony shall be awarded until litigants have had trial in Supreme Court or hearings before a referee named by a Supreme Court.

Its fourth proposal is that legal separation of a man and wife for five years shall constitute divorce grounds in New York.

Mrs. Gompers thinks incompatibility should be reason enough. She said:

"When two people find they can't bear the sight of each other, they ought not to have to. When a couple want to separate and make a new start, they should be allowed to."

Wife's Experiment, Taking Rival Into Home, Fails

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Mrs. Florence W. Headon Brewster, of Bridgeport, who attempted to apply the scientific methods of psychology in dealing with her unfaithful husband, admitted her failure in Superior Court yesterday and accepted the super cure of an absolute divorce.

Mrs. Brewster told Judge John Richards Booth that when her husband, Joseph Brewster, fell in love with Mrs. Martha Avery, the wife of his business partner, Mrs. Brewster invited and permitted Mrs. Avery to come and live with them. She told the judge:

"I did this because I thought that my husband would prefer me to Mrs. Avery after the first glamour of their relationship wore off."

Brewster and Mrs. Avery, however, fled to Brewster's camp in the Maine north woods last spring. There Brewster left Mrs. Avery. She made her way back to a settlement and was sent home to Bridgeport two months ago. Last Monday Maine police discovered Brewster in a lumber camp working under an assumed name. He was brought back to Bridgeport and given a five months jail sentence.

A week ago, Walter Avery, wealthy business man, divorced Martha Avery, naming Brewster. Mrs. Brewster was given a divorce, alimony and custody of four minor children.

DISTRICT CHURCHES JOIN IN WASHINGTON TRIBUTE

BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OPENS HERE

Special Programs Mark Event; Patriotic Orders To Join in Observance

The opening celebrations in Pittsburgh's observance of the George Washington bicentennial will be held here tomorrow with special services in churches throughout the district.

The First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, will hold special services tomorrow morning to which the mayors and burgesses of all cities and boroughs in Allegheny County have been invited. The Rev. D. Clarence E. Macartney will deliver the Washington address. Six of the original trustees of the First Presbyterian Church were officers in Washington's army and the descendants are members of the congregation.

OUTDOOR SERVICE

An outdoors service will be held tomorrow afternoon at St. Luke's-Chartiers Episcopal Church, Woodville, at which Senator Frank J. Harris and Judge W. Heber Dithrich, of Common Pleas Court, will speak. St. Luke's was intimately associated with the early history of Pittsburgh and with the history of the Revolutionary period.

A sermon on Washington, prepared at the request of the Presidential commission will be presented at 5 p. m. tomorrow by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, Amberson avenue. He will speak on "A Leader and Commander of the People," and the service will be broadcast through KDKA. War veterans and representatives of patriotic societies will attend in a body.

GRAYS TO ATTEND

More than 400 uniformed members of the Duquesne Grays, represented by the 176th Field Artillery, will attend services tomorrow night in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, when Dean N. B. H. Moor will speak. The program will include the massing of regimental flags and the sounding of "taps."

Mal. Robert M. Ewing, president of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, will speak tomorrow night in the First United Presbyterian Church, Fifth avenue and Thackeray street. The congregation of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church will join in the service.

Clarence Kline, history instructor of the Fifth Avenue High School, will speak tomorrow night to the young people of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Center and Liberty avenues. He will speak on "Washington and His Times."

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, of Rodef Shalom Congregation, Fifth and Morewood avenues, will speak tomorrow morning on "What Does the State Owe Its Citizens."

Community services will be held tomorrow night in the Shadeland Avenue Christian Church, North Side, to which fraternal orders have been invited. The Rev. C. C. Crawford will speak on "Lessons from the Life of Washington."

A motion picture of the life and time of Washington will be shown tomorrow night in the Knoxville Presbyterian Church, Knox avenue. The picture will portray Washington's life as a surveyor, colonist, soldier and president.

Other services commemorating the birth of the Father of His Country will be held throughout the district.

Judge Speaker

W. HEBER DITHRICH

Judge, Pittsburgh Common Pleas Court, one of the speakers for the St. Luke's-Chartiers Episcopal Church Washington Bicentennial services tomorrow.

HEBREWS MAKE APPEAL FOR COLLEGE

Chicago Faculty Members Speak in Synagogues; Mass Meeting Planned

A series of appeals were being made in local synagogues today in behalf of the Hebrew Theological College, of Chicago, with a mass meeting scheduled tomorrow night.

Two members of the faculty, Rabbi Samuel Elkin and Rabbi A. Lobel, with one of the directors, M. M. Sevin, Chicago business man, were speakers. Rabbi Elkin spoke before at the Adath Yeshurun Synagogue, Margaretta street, this morning, and was to be heard this afternoon at Torat Chayem, Negley avenue. Rabbi Lobel was speaker at the B'Nai Israel Synagogue and Mr. Sevin at Libavitzer Synagogue this morning. A banquet will be held tonight at the latter congregation. A mass meeting tomorrow night will be held at the Sharey Tfilah Synagogue, Miller street, at 6:30 o'clock.

Special Services By Science Churches

Special services will be held Monday night in all Christian Science churches in the Pittsburgh district as a part of the nation-wide celebration of the George Washington bicentennial. The service will include an address on George Washington by the first reader.

Daughter of Indian Bishop Speaks Here

Miss Theodore P. Chitambers, daughter of the first Indian bishop of the United States, will speak tomorrow morning in the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg. Mrs. Estelle Howard, president of Mt. Zion Seminary, Georgia, will speak at the evening service.

Science Churches To Study Mind

"Mind" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science churches. The golden text will be: "God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

Fundamentals in Religion Subject of Conference Here

West Pennsylvania Ministers on Program

DR. FREDERICK L. FAGLEY

DR. EDWARD W. CROSS

A discussion of fundamental religious questions in which Congregational and Christian ministers of Western Pennsylvania will take part will be held Monday in the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street.

Such questions as "Can we have religion without God?" and "Can science furnish an adequate substitute for religion?" will be discussed. Other questions will be:

"Is belief in personal immortality inconsistent with modern science?"

"Is prayer chiefly auto-suggestion or hetero-suggestion or some other exercise of natural psychological function?"

Leaders of the conference will be the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Cross of Richmond Hill, N. Y., and the Rev. Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, of the general council of the Congregational and Christian churches.

TWO CONCERTS BY C. E. CHORUS

The Allegheny County Christian Endeavor Chorus of 150 voices and an orchestra of 25 pieces, under the direction of Clyde I. Wolford, will present two concerts next week. They will appear Tuesday night in the North Side Carnegie Hall and Thursday night in the Wilkinsburg High School auditorium. They will again sing at the Easter sunrise services at Flagstaff Hill Schenley Park, at which Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, of the First Baptist Church, will speak.

Trinity to Observe Washington Day

The Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, Episcopal bishop of Pittsburgh, will speak Monday at the Washington's Birthday service in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue. From Tuesday until Friday of next week the noonday speaker at Trinity will be the Very Rev. Kirk B. O'Ferrall, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit. Mich. Canon Ernest Risley will speak Saturday, February 27.

Sharpsburg to Open Revival Meetings

One of the gayest of the winter colonies in the South is Miami Beach, Fla., which always attracts a coterie of Pittsburghers.

Mrs. F. G. Bannerot, of the Schenley Apartments, who is wintering there at the Roney Plaza Hotel, gave a dinner party Wednesday evening in honor of her son and daughter-in-law, the junior Fred Bannerots, who were celebrating their first wedding anniversary. Their marriage was an outstanding event of the Miami season last year.

The guests included the G. O. Palmers, father and mother of the bride of a year ago; Dr. and Mrs. Bascom H. Palmer, Judge and Mrs. U. O. Thompson, of Miami; the Albert J. Biglers, of Miami Beach and Chicago, and their house guest, Miss Essa Cumming, of Chicago.

Mrs. J. Judson Brooks is in Florida and will visit Palm Beach. Specifically, a fortnight in Orange, N. J., with her son-in-law and daughter, the junior Robert Lprohn Reed (Patricia Mrs. William Booth Miller, of Sewickley).

The David I. Clarks, of Dunmoyle street, have gone to St. Petersburg, Fla., where they'll stay at the Vinoy Park Hotel for the remainder of the winter.

Washington Revealed As Ardent Playgoer

George Washington was a lover of the theater and attended whenever the opportunity offered, George Seibel, dramatic and literary critic of the Sun-Telegraph, told the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, yesterday afternoon. Indeed, Mr. Seibel reminded his audience one of the best-known pictures of Washington is that of him being lighted to his box in the theater. The South was much more hospitable to the theater than was New England, where the early theater, puritanically, was not called a theater but a "museum," and "moral lectures" were given on Shakespeare. Mr. Seibel discussed some of the great players who died recently; he spoke also of some of the season's outstanding plays. He said the old era is passing and that the new one is more promising.

Pastor of Altoona Catholic Church Dies

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The Rev. Urban J. Peters, 39, pastor of St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church at Altoona, died in a Johnstown hospital last night. Father Peters, who was director of the Society of the Propagation of the Faith in the Altoona diocese, formerly was stationed in Johnstown.

He was a native of Spangler, Pa.

Ohio Mine Owners Held in Shooting

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 20.—Junior and John Ivan Wolford, of Coshocton, two of the owners of Wolford Coal Company mine near Newport, are at liberty on $800 bond each after being bound over to Tuscarawas County grand jury by Justice E. N. Fair, of this city, on charges of shooting with intent to kill and carrying firearms. They were accused of firing several shots at a group of striking miners.

NARCOTIC BODY NAMES HOOVER

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—President Hoover will be asked to accept the honorary presidency of the United States National Narcotic Defense Committee, it was agreed yesterday at the close of the joint conference of the World Narcotic Defense Association and the International Narcotic Education Association.

Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, president of the Defense association, said President Hoover's name on the committee's letterhead would dispel the idea, broadcast by the narcotic ring, that the government is opposed to the campaign.

Capt. Hobson charged the narcotic interests, through representatives of foreign nations, dominated the deliberations of the council of the League of Nations and brought nullification of the efforts of his and other interests to wipe out the narcotic traffic.

Guinan Club Closed, Hostess Not Named

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The Planet Mars night club and 31 other clubs and cafes were ordered closed for prohibition violations yesterday, but the Federal Court said nothing about Texas Guinan.

Owners and employes of several of the places face prosecution, but not Miss Guinan. She was "only a poor working girl," Miss Guinan told federal officers who raided the Planet Mars on New Year's Eve. She returned to New York a few days later.

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

Some subjects of especial interest to every club woman have been assigned for the club institute which Mrs. James G. Chalfant, president of the southwestern district, State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, will conduct in Dormont New Century Club on Wednesday afternoon. "The Business of Being a Clubwoman" is to be the general theme and under this Mrs. G. B. Roberts will discuss what a club may expect from its officers; Mrs. H. M. White will tell what constitutes an ideal board, and Mrs. J. G. Moorhead will describe the ideal board member.

Mrs. H. H. Heinrich will tell what a club may expect from its members, Mrs. J. H. Bricker, what it may expect from an audience, and then Mrs. Ronald Thompson and Mrs. Freeman M. Hammond will treat of "What Price Leadership" from both executive and spiritual viewpoints. Under "Giving and Getting," Mrs. C. C. Taylor, Mrs. Joseph N. Orbin and Mrs. C. W. Scheck will speak of what a club gives to and gets from the Federation, and will discuss whether it gets its money's worth. Mrs. Richard B. Perry, New Century's program chairman, will present Mrs. Chalfant.

Mrs. Virginia Drynan, retiring president, was presented with a box of stationery and a fountain pen.

Parents to Share Von Eltz Children

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The court fight over the Von Eltz children has ended in a draw. Ruling yesterday on an application filed by Theodore Von Eltz, film actor, seeking to give him custody of Theodore, Jr., and Lora, the court held that the parents must share the custody.

Von Eltz asked sole custody, asserting his former wife, now married to Joseph Moncure March, writer, was unable to provide a proper atmosphere for the children because of the presence of March. The objections to March were based on a book he had written.

FIREMAN TELLS OF ELOPEMENT

South Side police today were awaiting a visit from August Erhardt, 40, a city fireman, who returned yesterday with the announcement that Florence Czlapinski, 15, a dancer whom he was accused of abducting, was his bride.

Calling at his former rooming house, 2109 Sidney street, Erhardt, police said, exhibited a West Virginia marriage license to the landlady. The fireman told her he was going to the police station to tell of his marriage to the dancer. Erhardt and his bride failed to appear at the police station.

Search for the couple began Wednesday when her father, Felix Czlapinski, of 2105 Sarah street, requested their apprehension. Florence returned home that day after a two-day absence and announced her marriage to Erhardt. She then sped away with the fireman in an automobile. Erhardt did not report for duty at No. 12 Engine Company last night as driver of the battalion chief's car.

Armstrong County Audit Seeks $50,000

KITTANNING, Pa., Feb. 20.—With the impounding of the books of former County Treasurer Harry Rearic by District Attorney William Ashe, it was announced today an audit will be made. Armstrong County furnishing two and Rearic one of the auditors.

There is said to be an error or discrepancy of approximately $50,000 in the accounts, according to County Commissioner E. E. Schaler.

2,000 Rock-Hurling Coal Strikers Routed

DOMBROWA, Poland, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Police dispersed 2,000 rock-hurling coal miners in three strike demonstrations yesterday organized by Communists. No sympathy strike has developed in Silesia.

On Wednesday coal miners of the Cracow and Dombrowa districts voted to strike rather than accept an 8 per cent wage cut.

Long Abandons 'Justice Temple' For New Home

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Huey Long swapped his "temple of freedom" for a "haven of refuge" today.

The four-room hotel suite occupied by the Louisiana Senator for the past five years and which was designated by him as the "temple of freedom," was vacated as the Senator moved into his new $40,000 residence just completed here. He declared:

"This is really going to be a home. "I'm going to cut out receiving calls at all hours. I'm not even going to talk over the phone after I go to bed."

The hotel suite was the scene of many impromptu receptions by the Senator when he was Governor.

BEWEEN-SEASON MODE IMPORTANT

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—No longer is the mode marked by definite seasons. Clothes for in-between-season wear have become of increasing importance, and so this section of the mode is being fast developed by every designer. Not only is this phase productive of additional revenue, but it gives us a chance to try out certain styles and indicate our preferences. And so when the spring or autumn modes proper are created, these favored details are adapted or incorporated into the mode, so that the sartorial evolution becomes more evenly paced. And since there are not such revolutionary changes each season, since in-between-season modes have become important, there is less need for us to rush out and purchase a complete wardrobe just because spring is at hand and not one frock that we have will do. Now, now we find that the little frock purchased in January or February has several points of familiarity with the latest spring modes.

THE EVENING frock sketched is a in-between-season model that will look good well into the spring, as well as being a harbinger of that lovely season. The model is by Lanvin and is made of white crepe marocain. Note should be made of the diagonal cut of the bodice and skirt yoke. The sensible little matching jacket has wide, flaring sleeves embroidered in black chenille. A strass clasp fastens the draped belt at one side. Amply circular in cut is the skirt with the fulness clustered at one side of the front.

ANDRE SEEKING RENO DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Dr. Carl Pierre Andre, West Virginia dentist acquitted last December of the murder of Mrs. Martha Hutchinson, his asserted sweetheart, was seeking to have his marriage to Dortha Howard Andre, of Fairmont, W. Va., dissolved in District Court today.

Trial of the divorce action was to be before Judge Thomas Moran who presided at the murder trial.

Dr. Andre filed his divorce complaint last September 9, four days before Mrs. Hutchinson was killed by a fall from his speeding automobile. The state charged the young dentist had tired of the widow's love and had murdered her by shoving her from his car.

The Andres married at Baltimore, Md., October 25, 1921. They have two children, Susanna, 10, and Edward, 6. Both now are with their mother in Fairmont.

Suspect in Slaying Trapped, Shoots Self

REDLANDS, Cal., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Wilkie C. Long, ex-convict, sought for the slaying of Mrs. Margaret Randolph, 42-year-old divorcee, was cornered at his mother's home yesterday and shot himself through the head before deputy sheriffs could capture him. Physicians said they believed the wound would be fatal.

She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and the Twentieth Century Club, and for many years was active in the affairs of Homeopathic Hospital.

Miss Bainbridge Becomes Bride In Church

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bainbridge, of Peermont avenue, Dormont, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Katharine Jean Bainbridge, to Hermann Laughner von Ende, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. von Ende, of Grove City, which was solemnized at noon Thursday. The ceremony took place in the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, Dormont, with the Rev. Edwin Bleakney officiating. The church was simply decorated with ferns and spring flowers.

The bride, who was unattended, wore an afternoon gown of blue transparent velvet with a matching hat, and carried Talisman roses.

Upon their return from a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. von Ende will be at home after March 1 in the East End.

Yesterday morning Miss Eleanor Leidenroth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Leidenroth, of Sheridan avenue, with Miss Elizabeth Collin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Collin, left by motor with Mr. and Mrs. Leidenroth to attend the West Point ball at West Point.

Last evening Mrs. Reginald A. Daniel II, of Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, gave a bridge dinner in her home honoring the wives of Shriners who attended the testimonial dinner last night in honor of Karl Rex Hammers at the William Penn Hotel. The home was decorated in George Washington effects.

SCREEN ACTOR DIES IN CRASH

SAFFORD, Ariz., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Otto Mattisen, 38, veteran character actor, was killed, and Duncan Renaldo, featured in several films, was injured slightly when their automobile plunged off the highway yesterday near Pima, 10 miles west of here. Both resided in Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Otto Mattiesen was one of filmland's most distinguished character actors. He left here several days ago on a trip with his friend Duncan Renaldo.

Mattiesen was born in Copenhagen, Denmark. He played six years in London with the famous English actor, Sir Herbert Tree, and then came to America. He had leading roles in such silent pictures as "Scaramouche," "Salvation Hunters," "Beloved Rogue," "Woman from Moscow," and "Strange Cargo."

Conviction Reversed In Chicago Slaying

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Conviction of William "Three Finger Jack" White, Chicago "public enemy" for the murder of Edward Pflaume, policeman, in 1926, was reversed by the Supreme Court yesterday, and the case remanded for retrial.

White was sentenced to imprisonment at Joliet Penitentiary for 14 years by the jury which convicted him. An earlier life sentence for the murder was reversed and remanded by the high court and the second sentence was the result of the second trial.

Building Trades Accept Lower Pay

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—It's better to work at approximately $7 a day, Chicago's union building trades workers have decided, than to loaf at $12.

The plumbers' and electricians' unions announced they will work on remodelling and modernizing private homes for 45 per cent less than their union wage scales. Home owners can buy their own supplies, it was announced, and the workmen will give them the special rate.

COLDS

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole rub once an hour for five hours . . . what a glorious relief!

Those good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve.

It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

American Weekly Topics on Air

If George Washington were living today, he would urge preparedness and oppose cancellation of debts.

This is the opinion of James J. Davis, United States Senator from Pennsylvania, who writes on this subject in the March of Events section the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Senator Davis' article, and a number of other interesting Sunday features, will be discussed at 7 o'clock tonight over WCAE in the American Weekly broadcast.

Ford Miller presents his Boys' Club program for a half-hour at 11:30 a. m. over WCAE.

Artists on the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club tonight at 11 are Bill Moorhouse, tenor; Kathryn Trnavsky, soprano, and Ann Zimit, blues singer. Riggs and Moke, the Crazy Pair, are masters of ceremonies.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, gives his news flashes at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

LISTENING IN

With the Radio Editor

"FATHER AND SON" week will be officially opened in Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon with a special program by Count John K. Chapel in his "Twilight Reveries" period on KQV at 5 o'clock.

The nation-wide observance, under direction of the Y. M. C. A., will continue until next Saturday. The local committee, headed by Kenneth J. Brooks, selected the Chapel broadcast as most appropriate for the occasion.

Count Chapel will construct the program with special reference to fathers and sons, assisted by his 11-year-old understudy, Charles Gilbert Davis, of Wilkinsburg, and Prince, the dog. Ernest Neff at the console organ will give appropriate musical numbers.

Exploits of the Pennsylvania State Police will be heard by the Royal Canadian Mounted when Elmer Faber, historian of the Keystone troopers, speaks during the Far North program on KDKA at 11 o'clock tonight.

Hundreds of messages will be sent to those living in the Arctic and sub-Arctic, and the Rev. Dr. George Taylor, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, will conduct the first part of the broadcast to explorers and missionaries.

The Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, pastor of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, conducts the Columbia "Church of the Air," which goes on the network from WJAS tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Dr. Hutchison's sermon will deal with "The Religious Life of Washington." Music for the chain broadcast will be furnished by a mixed quartet under direction of William Wentzel.

Program Pointers

HER FAMOUS HUSBAND is expected to be at her side when Mrs. Anne Lindbergh makes her radio debut tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Every available transmitter of the CBS chain and the WEAF hookup of NBC will be linked into New York for the talk, to be heard here over WCAE and WJAS. Mrs. Lindbergh will describe her flight over the flooded Yangtze Valley last spring, in an appeal arranged in behalf of flood relief in China.

Walter Winchell's "magic carpet" carries listeners into the tropics tonight where Manolo Castro's La Corona Orchestra from Havana will interpret the real rumba and the swaying tango with the authenticity which only natives can bring to such characteristic dances.

A composition never before heard over the radio, John Alden Carpenter's "Song of Faith," is featured in the Walter Damrosch Symphonic Hour on KDKA tomorrow afternoon.

The spirit of Rudolph Valentino is recaptured in the tempo of a tango written by Nat Shilkret and sung by Alex Gray on WJAS at 10:30 tonight. The number is titled "Fate."

Mr. Bones, Mr. Interlocutor and all the familiar characters of an old-time blackface show take part in the new minstrel program on KDKA at 9 tonight.

Deems Taylor tells the story of Guiseppe Verdi's opera, "La Traviata," during the broadcast of the third and fourth acts from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House this afternoon. It is a WCAE feature.

The symphonic unit of the Western Penitentiary Band, which includes several musicians of unusual talent, is on the air from KDKA at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. E. F. Sullivan, leader of the Carnegie Tech Kiltie Band, is the director.

Station WGY's tenth anniversary celebration, carried on WCAE tonight, promises to be a gala occasion. Many of the early artists and announcers are on the program, which also includes a scene from Tolstoi's "Redemption."

Question Box

Where is Miss Marie Moss, who used to play on WCAE?—R. S., Pittsburgh.

Miss Moss still is connected with WCAE, presenting a regular Tuesday program at 11:30 a. m., and frequently appearing as accompanist in the evening. She also is heard occasionally over KDKA, usually in two-piano numbers with Miss Dorothy Nesbit.

Fan Fare

A burlesque on Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" is the offering of the Troubadors of the Drama at 11 tonight on WJAS.

Did you know that "Roxy," who will be heard on WCAE Tuesday, served seven years in the Marines?

Miss Sonja Henie, of Norway, winner of the Olympic figure skating championship, will be recipient of the award to be announced on the "Evening in Paris" hour Monday night.

Ralph Federer's "One Little Hour," dedicated to "Marian," has been published and put on the market by a Pittsburgh firm. Paul Gannon features it on WCAE Monday night, with the composer at the piano.

Gladys Rice, NBC star, made her stage debut at a very early age, and brought down the house at her first appearance. Her father, an actor, was in the midst of a very dramatic love scene when Gladys broke away from her nurse in the wings and rushed on stage shouting, "Daddy, Daddy."

Station KUKU is about ready to go on after dark again . . . Nick Lucas was one of Paul Whiteman's hired-hands at one time . . . The stage is beckoning again to Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit . . . Leo Reisman uses a plane to commute between Boston and New York . . . Floyd Gibbons is being swamped with radio offers . . . Sisters of the Skillet have a police escort between their theater and the radio studios . . . A new novel by Marjorie Barkley McClure is dedicated to James Melton . . . The authoress is the tenor's mother.

Studio Static

Martha Boswell is a great admirer of Tony Wons, but there was one time recently when she tuned him out. That was just after her small son had driven her almost to distraction by beating a drum, running an electric train and knocking over a goldfish bowl on a new manuscript the Boswell Sisters were to do the next evening. Seeking relief, Martha snapped on the radio just in time to hear Tony Wons saying:

"All is well."

And with a grimace at the radio set, Martha snapped back:

"Oh, yeah!"

Kidneys bother you?

Heed promptly bladder irregularities, getting up at night and nagging backache. They may warn of some disordered kidney or bladder condition. Users everywhere rely on Doan's Pills. Praised for more than 50 years by grateful users the country over. Sold by all druggists.

DOAN'S PILLS
A DIURETIC FOR THE KIDNEYS

Things You Will Want To Know About in the

SUNDAY SUN-TELEGRAPH

Who Is John N. Garner?

He may be our next President. Hundreds of thousands of Americans outside of Washington and the Southwest know little of this plain man from Texas. You will get the first installment of the complete life story of John N. Garner, by George Rothwell Brown, in next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

Celebrating the 200th Anniversary of the Birth of Washington

Gilbert Stuart's famous painting will be reproduced in full page and full color in the American Weekly Magazine Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. General Washington requested a copy of this portrait, but didn't accept it. Sunday's story will tell you why. Yes, the reproduction will be suitable for framing.

Walter Winchell

who has won so many followers with his gossipy "On Broadway" column in the Sun-Telegraph, is a mighty fine-looking chap. You'll find his picture featured in the Rotogravure Section of next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

Mickey Mouse

the favorite of millions of followers of the funnies in the newspaper and the movies, will get a thrill when this popular comic makes his first appearance dressed up in colors. Next Sunday in the Comic Weekly.

Another Funny Face!

Kiddies will all want the life-size comic mask of Barney Google which will be given away with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph next Sunday. Loads of Fun! Ready to cut out and wear.

and last, but far from least—

. . . Colds doubly dangerous with "Flu" around

WITH "flu" in the community, don't take chances with colds. Colds tend to pull down body resistance, and often pave the way for an attack of "flu" and its serious complications. In the present emergency, you can double your protection with the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds."

1 To Help Prevent Colds: Whenever you feel that you are "catching cold" put a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril at once. This will check many colds before they get beyond the nose and throat—where most colds start.

2 To Reduce the Severity of Colds: If a cold has developed, don't neglect it—at bedtime massage the throat and chest with Vicks VapoRub. During the day, use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours for added comfort and relief. This gives you full 24-hour treatment.

CREDIT PLANS AID BANKS' POSITION

Moves by Reconstruction Corporation Allay Fear Of Sudden Emergencies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Intangible benefits of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—those that do not show up on the balance sheet—are expected to play a major role in bolstering private credit.

While equipped with at least $2,000,000,000 to throw into the breach to relieve financial strains, an incalculable further amount is being made available by the program which strikes at fear held to be one of the roots of the present difficulty.

It has been said in government circles that banks particularly will be the chief beneficiaries of these intangible benefits. Already several institutions have discussed their immediate problems with the corporation and have received assurances they will be aided if and when emergencies arise. The banks knowing that they have this additional measure of protection are enabled to give credit more freely for business operations without impairing their own financial standing and without the aid of a single penny. As a result less forced selling of securities and commodities is looked for.

By supplying this relief for emergency situations, whether oral or monetary, it is felt that confidence will be stimulated and greater courage created on the part of the borrower.

Wall Street Spectator

Present Market May Be Known as 'Big Bear Hunt'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.

The present market probably will go down in Wall street annals as the "big bear hunt." With the Stock Exchange, the administration and the financial powers downtown acting in cahoots, the shorts are in for some rough going. Stocks were offered down pretty freely at the close. Watch them for support in today's early dealings as a signal for continuation of the upswing.

The fact the averages went through the January tops may be a bullish technical signal but the artificial circumstances under which this occurred is making some smart people hold off for a further confirmation.

The powers-that-be, 'tis said, didn't want any skyrocketing yesterday and offered plenty of stock to hold the list down right after the opening.

A good deal of steel was sold. It is understood. The bride also is understood to have been put on Case Threshing, where a big short interest exists. There was 7,000 Case wanted before the opening, and the crowd, it is stated, could have started it off with an overnight jump of 5 or 10 points. . . . As it is Case opened 3¼ points higher on a comparatively small block. . . . Later in the day, 'tis said, selling orders for thousands of Case were put in around 42 to make sure it didn't get too skittish. . . . The new short selling restriction may be considered just so much more oxygen for the wobbly market "patient."

May wheat has a perfect chart formation with yesterday's high only fractionally below the technical top. . . . T. P. Lee, who is fighting the Cullinans for control of American Republics, is in town for a few days preparatory to going down to Wilmington, where the big battle will be held Thursday. . . . Each side is understood to have about 42 per cent of the stock. The rest is kicking around the street. . . . The boys have been "sniffing" around Union Carbide and say they have found a big and pretty stubborn short interest. . . . They're also running around Du Pont.

Stocks Heavy

Local List Narrow

STOCK MARKET QUIET, TONE HEAVY

Steel, American Telephone, Westinghouse, S. Pacific, Can Off Point or More

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The stock market was quietly heavy in the early trading today.

The list opened with narrow changes, but there were several losses of 1 to 2 points by the end of the first half hour. Wider losses appeared in Union Pacific, Auburn and Coca Cola, while issues off a point or more included United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Du Pont, Case, Southern Pacific, Westinghouse Electric and others.

An announcement which stood out in sharp contrast with the two-year record of almost continuous price cutting was made by a leading automobile manufacturer which indicated an advance in prices, rather than another reduction, was now in prospect. The statement furnished some tangible encouragement in support of the belief that steel manufacturers were successfully holding their present price schedules despite the fact that automobile demand has been slow to materialize. The announcement intimated that the steel companies were not this year cutting prices for materials below actual costs, as was done in some cases a year ago.

Investment circles were again interested in a persistent rumor that a "bullish" announcement would shortly come out of France. This rumor intimated that France would announce a credit relaxation program similar to the American government's formation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but bankers pointed out that France has a governmental body of similar character already at work.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with sterling cables quoted at $3.45⅜, up ¼ cent.

Humble Abandons Sunday Shutdown

HOUSTON, Feb. 20.—Following Magnolia Petroleum Company's action, Humble Oil and Refining Company and Texas Company will abandon Sunday shutdown in the East Texas field effective tomorrow. Their production and purchases will be on the basis of 65 barrels per well daily, against 75 barrels daily on a six-day week basis previously. Other companies probably will take similar action.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

LACK OF STRONG FINANCE CHIEF IRKS HOOVER

Failure of Banking Heads To Co-operate Promptly Disappoints President

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20.—President Hoover's intimates declare that the Chief Executive was unable to get the bankers of the country to play ball until after England went off the gold standard.

Then, according to the White House view, the bankers got scared and fell into line. Before that, the bankers were inclined to play an individualistic game and were adamant to constructive remedies being inclined to let nature take its course. It is understood that under the fire of critical events the President was disappointed at the lack of strong leadership in the banking community.

Mr. Rukeyser

The President could find no strong man to perform in the effective manner the late J. Pierpont Morgan did in 1907. President Roosevelt warned him that unless the bankers could get together to stop the panic he would intervene. Immediately Mr. Morgan's leadership asserted itself and the situation this time began to improve. The President's friends say that Mr. Hoover was distinctly disappointed at the quality of the present generation of financiers.

Since September 20, the President has been getting the desired co-operation, and the so-called reconstruction program has been formulated and in part carried into effect.

While out here I visited the glamorous lots of Culver City, where Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures are created. I asked Louis B. Mayer, executive head of the producing end, how his company had succeeded in bucking the trend while others in the industry were greatly depressed. Mr. Mayer said:

"The answer is very simple. During the boom, Nicholas Schenck stood resolutely against unhealthy expansion of the theater chain. Accordingly, we are not oversupplied with theaters acquired at unwarrantably high prices.

"Secondly, on the producing side, we recognized the value of superior talent, and have kept our people with us through the years. That has been accomplished because the studio has been free from intrigue and politics. None of our actors and directors has wondered who would be in charge next day. Our stars and directors have felt free to discuss their problems with us.

"The third reason for our success is Irving Thalberg, our 32-year-old production supervisor, who is the outstanding phenomenon in the industry. Mr. Thalberg is the greatest picture surgeon of our time; a genius at locating trouble and eliminating it in retakes and editing. Ten years ago I recognized Mr. Thalberg's talent, and I decided that, if a new producing champion was coming forward, I wanted to be associated with him. I did not rely on a mere contract, but promptly made him a partner."

Mr. Mayer feels optimistic about the general economic outlook, but thought other industries would move forward before the theaters, which would show a lag.

Radio 'Voice'

WILLIAM HOUSER SLOAN

GIVES SUNDAY RADIO TALKS

The voice heard delivering a talk of an educational nature during the Allegheny County Memorial Park program broadcast each Sunday afternoon by Station KDKA is that of William Houser Sloan.

The program is broadcast under the sponsorship of the Allegheny County Memorial Park. The Memorial Park program is one of the oldest local programs being broadcast by KDKA. A feature of each broadcast is the appearance of a leading male quartet.

Mr. Sloan, who is the publicity director of the Allegheny County Memorial Park, is well known as a public speaker. He was born in Omaha. His public school education was obtained at Kansas City, Mo. He also attended Kansas University, Lawrence, Kan. Mr. Sloan has had special training in sales management, public speaking, advertising and literature.

He has made a special study of the Memorial Park business since associating with the company in the early summer of 1928 at the very beginning of the enterprise. For 14 months he was on the firing line as salesman and as assistant to the manager of the East Liberty office. He has been publicity director for the last 26 months.

SINGER OPENS SEWING CLASS

The new Singer Building at 441 Wood street is just as much a school as it is a place of business. Daily there are classes in home sewing, comprising courses in drapery, dress and coat making and the making of home articles.

The shop itself is most attractive. The walls are panelled in a light wood of fine grain. Indirect lighting is used throughout the entire shop. The drapes and valances were all made by the teachers in the sewing school. There is also a display of dresses, pillows, small wearfs and unusually worked pieces to be seen in the window and shop proper. This new Singer establishment is one of 10,000 stores of a company 80 years old.

Exchange to Admit Associate Members

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The New York Real Estate Securities Exchange, Inc., has inaugurated an associate form of membership which is available to members or partnership members of the New York Stock Exchange and to regular members or partners of regular members of the New York Curb Exchange. Under this new form of membership no initiation fee will be charged and the associate member will transact his business through a floor broker at one-half the regular rate of non-member commission.

Union Power Stock Sold by Utility

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The Utility Industrial Corporation has disposed of its holdings in the Union Power Corporation, consisting of 15,000 shares of class A and 66,811 shares of class B stock. This was disclosed by the former's annual report for 1931. The Union Power Company owns all of the common stock of the Federal Public Service Company and is controlled by H. M. Byllesby & Co. and the American Equities Corporation.

Youngstown Scrap Price Holds Firm

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 20.—Iron and steel scrap quotations in the Youngstown district are holding unchanged from a week ago with heavy melting at $9.25 to $9.75 a ton. Scrap movements are mostly local. Sentiment is slightly better on signs of general business improvement.

Brokers Favor Action to Check Short Selling

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE ACTION TAKEN by the New York Stock Exchange in requiring brokers to get written permission from customers before lending stock was accepted enthusiastically by the partners of most houses in this city. Opinions differed widely as to the effect of the step on the supply of stock for lending purposes, but the general attitude was that the influence on the market would continue to be helpful and that customers would be more fairly treated.

Many Pittsburgh brokers have discouraged short selling during recent months and a few houses said that they had not made a practice of lending stocks held for the accounts of their clients even though their statements contain the usual printed clause giving them the right to lend stocks.

Whether or not the new rule will seriously hamper the bears is not yet clear. A ready supply of stocks for lending is essential to operations on the short side of the market. The broker of a short-seller must make delivery on the following day. To do this he must borrow the stock from some broker holding it for a client on the long side. Obviously the necessity for a broker to have written consent from his customers before lending stock will result in some curtailment of the supply. But it is difficult to judge just how extensive this curtailment will be.

Customers to Benefit

WHILE MANY BROKERS undoubtedly will make a concerted effort to get the permission of customers to lend stocks, it probably will be necessary for them to give the customers some of the profits of this phase of their business in return. In the past customers never knew when their stocks were being loaned and the brokers kept all the profits from the business for themselves.

When a broker borrows a stock he puts up an amount of cash equal to the value of the stock as security. If the demand to borrow the stock is not great, the broker lending the stock pays the prevailing call money rate as interest on the money. But if the demand is heavy, a lower interest rate, or no interest at all, may be paid. In that case the broker has the use of the money at a lower cost than if he borrowed it on the call money market. When the demand to borrow a stock is particularly heavy, a premium may actually be paid by the borrower in addition to giving the lender the use of the money without interest. In such cases the profits to brokers lending stock are large.

Must Pass on Gravy

IN ORDER TO EXTRACT permission to lend stocks it now seems likely that the brokers will have to pass some of this gravy on to their customers. This will make the lending of stocks less profitable to brokers and some of them may not feel that the gains will be great enough to make it worth their while to secure written permission to lend the stocks. Thus two factors will work to cut down the supply of stocks to short traders. First of all there will be the natural reluctance of customers to assist bear operations and second the business will be less attractive to brokers.

On the other hand, a new factor may be brought to bear. Holders of large blocks of stocks for investment purposes may find that there will be sufficient inducements to make it worth their while for them to place their holdings in the hands of brokers for the sole purpose of lending the stock.

The greatest effect of the new rule may be that it will make operations on the short side more costly than they have been at most times in the past and this will act as a discouraging factor to the bears.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Despite some conspicuous bolstering features in the week's developments, the movement of bank clearings to a lower level was uninterrupted. They reveal persistent immunity to increasing stock-market transactions and evidently are inured to the better sentiment that current commercial activity has elicited. With a total for all leading cities of the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $4,743,567,000, this week's bank clearings are 40.9 per cent below those of a year ago for the comparative period. The aggregate for the cities outside of New York of $1,606,594,000 showed a drop of 38.7 per cent.

Clearings for this week as reported to R. G. Dun & Co. showing decreases as compared with same period a year ago follow (totals in thousands):

Exports of Gold Total $7,427,500

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The daily gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve Bank for yesterday shows a decrease of $2,167,100 in gold earmarked for foreign account. Exports totaled $7,427,500, of which $4,711,100 went to France, $2,366,400 to Portugal, $300,000 to Germany and $50,000 to Holland. There were no imports.

The bank has been notified that $139,000 of gold has been received at San Francisco from China.

Merger Opposition Appoints Counsel

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Elmer R. Laskin, of Houston, has been appointed counsel for Texas stockholders of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company and the Prairie Pipe Line Company, who are opposed to the proposed merger of Prairie interests with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

AGENCY'S SALES VOLUME UP

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 20.—At the Thirty-fourth annual stockholders meeting of the Cramer-Krasselt Company advertising agency, William A. Krasselt, treasurer, announced that 1931 billings showed an increase of 28.15 per cent over 1930. The current year is budgeted on an expected increase of 20 per cent over 1931. F. C. Cramer, president, stated:

"During 1931 we opened two new offices and thus obtained complete coverage of the strategic centers. Permanent service offices are now located at New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Indianapolis and Los Angeles. In itself, this is proof of our belief in the basic soundness of American business. This faith is further justified by our balance sheet, which shows that we are one of very few agencies able to report progress during a year of mergers, failures and general chaos in the field."

British Farmers Ask Meat Tariff

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—British farmers have demanded a 10 per cent tariff on meat and wool as well as other foreign imports under the government's new tariff measure.

Sir John Gilmour, minister of agriculture, stated in the House of Commons recently that wheat, meat and wool would be the only agricultural products that would be exempt from the new duty. Wheat is being dealt with in a separate bill which guarantees the British farmer 15 per cent of the domestic market, at a fixed price.

Zinc Production Totals Reported

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—World production of zinc in 1931 amounted to 1,130,203 short tons, or a monthly average of 94,184 tons according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. World output in January, 1932, was 80,887 tons, of which the United States produced 22,516 tons.

JAMES M. CUMMING

SCHOOL ADDS INSTRUCTOR

Pittsburgh School of Accountancy announces the addition of another practical instructor to its evening school faculty of approximately 35 certified public accountants and members of the Pennsylvania bar.

James M. Cumming, C. P. A., of Cumming & Co., certified public accountants, Union Trust Building, will teach taxes to the junior class. This course is taught in conjunction with auditing.

Mr. Cumming is a member of the local chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants, American Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

GENERAL TRADE STILL SLOW

No material change is noted in local trade circles, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. A few of the larger stores are transacting a somewhat larger volume of business due principally to special sales and extensive advertising.

The movement of heavy clothing and other seasonable merchandise has been very slow, but reduced prices are being offered in an effort to reduce stock before spring merchandise is received. The shoe trade continues slow and it is expected that there will be 'considerable' stock to carry over. Dry goods trade continues slow and buying for future delivery is very limited. Building operations have thus far shown but little activity and the volume of business transacted by dealers in lumber and building supplies continues much below normal. There is a moderate movement of hardware and implements.

The output of bituminous coal is slightly higher than a week ago, but continues to average approximately 25 per cent lower than last year at this time. Comparatively little change is noted in the rate of collections which continue to average slow.

Sugar Planters Aided by Weather

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 20.—The Weather Bureau indications are that this section of the South is getting the warmest weather in the past 60 years. In the sugar cane fields of Southwest Louisiana, cane that has sprung up from last years' planting is farther advanced on some plantations than it would be in May of an ordinary season, forecasting an extraordinary sugar crop unless late cold spells are met.

Furniture Factory Resumes Activity

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 20.—The West Penn Manfacturing Company, makers of furniture, has resumed operations at its factory. About 80 men are on the job, and orders on hand insure work for about four months.

STEEL OUTPUT TO GAIN OVER JANUARY

Producers Maintain Hope Of Spring Advancement; Auto Call Disappoints

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel production has been off a trifle in the last fortnight, at about 26 per cent of present capacity, but the month is likely to be above the average rate in January, which was about 25 per cent, officially reported at 26.54 per cent based on the old capacity rating, now being revised. January and February would be above December and under preceding months, but only slightly under October and September. Apparently steel demand closely approached a sort of "irreducible minimum" some four months ago. There has since been less decrease than would be expected from the course of business and financial affairs generally.

With the second half of February entered without there being marked increase in demand there is some disappointment for while it was the consensus of opinion in December that seasonal increase would develop later than usual the majority of observers expected it to be visible by this time. The theory is not abandoned, however, that there will be some sort of improvement on the approach or advent of spring, due by the calendar a month hence.

WROUGHT IRON CUT

Sellers of bars, shapes, plates, sheets and strips, which have declined and also become irregular during the last three months, continue to entertain hopes that prices will become rigid and uniform, making what is commonly called a stabilized market, such as had previously existed for about four in these lines as well as in the others which remain steady, pipe, wire products and standard rails.

The movement does not appear to be making rapid progress. In all the products but sheets only regularity, an elimination of cutting, not outright advances, is sought. In sheets the mills are quoting a new list of prices, some of them below the nominal prices previously used as basis for shading, others like black and galvanized being at distinct advances, 2.20 cents on black and 3.85 cents on galvanized. The new asking prices have not yet had a serious test. Wrought iron pipe has been formally reduced about $4 a ton by Reading Iron Company, but this will not influence steel pipe.

OUTLOOK HOPEFUL

Latest developments in the automobile business are disappointing to the steel producers as automobile makers seem to have found less demand in prospect than expected, as to number of cars, and a stronger leaning towards the lowest priced cars possible, which means correspondingly less steel tonnage and close bargaining for the steel that is bought.

In the steel trade generally it is felt that all possible reverses as to tonnage have occurred and that while there is no visible promise of large improvement within the next few months there should be no decreases at all, but rather slight increases. It is a long standing tradition in steel that when there is definite emergence from depression it begins either in March or in September or October, and expectations of really substantial improvement are now deferred to the later time. Thought is of say 30 to 40 per cent production in the next few months and perhaps a crossing of 50 per cent late in the year. Producers, however, are thinking more seriously about prices than about tonnage as the one should be under control while the other is conjectural.

JACK'S COMEBACK SEEN AS FAILURE

WORD FROM EXPERIENCED boxing men who sat in at the four-rounder between Jack Dempsey and King Levinsky in Chicago Thursday night is to the effect that Dempsey looked even worse than accounts of the affair have painted him. These men, who had seen the former heavyweight champion at his best, say they were amazed to note how much of his old stuff he had lost. The difference between the Dempsey of yesteryear and the Dempsey of today is so great, they report, that they found it difficult to realize they were looking at the same man.

Jack Dempsey

A prominent manager of boxers, who is one of Dempsey's close personal friends, told a Pittsburgher in a long-distance telephone conversation from Chicago that his liking for Jack had not blinded him to the fact that the one-time titleholder's performance against Levinsky was woefully poor. "I can't see any hope for him," he said. "He was terrible. He didn't win a single round against a man whom the Dempsey of old would have beaten in a punch. I'm still Jack's friend but if he takes my advice he'll give it up."

JOE PAGE, widely traveled Canadian sportsman, came to Pittsburgh yesterday after witnessing the Chicago bout and added the testimony of another Dempsey well-wisher that Jack's showing had been sadly disappointing. Page had been pulling hard for Dempsey's success and went to Chicago prepared to concede him a chance for a successful comeback if he found him even 75 per cent as good as formerly.

"But he came nowhere near the 75 per cent mark," Joe remarked. "I was never more disappointed in a fighter in my life. The exhibition that Dempsey gave was pathetic. I had seen Levinsky against Uzcudun and Baer and felt that it wouldn't take much to beat him, but Dempsey was sadly unequal to the contract. I can't see a chance for him to make the grade. He isn't merely going back. He IS back, just as far as he can get."

YEARS AGO THE Pittsburgh baseball club tried squash racquets on a spring training trip, but then abandoned it, though it had brought good results. Denny McFayden, Red Sox pitcher, now bobs up to report that the game has done wonders for him during the winter and to request the Boston club to adopt it as a conditioning feature.

McFayden, holding that the legs are as important to a pitcher as his hurling arm, says that squash is the best exercise he has ever found for the underpinning and that it has also strengthened his wrist to such an extent that he feels sure he will have a better curve ball this year.

WHILE BASEBALL FANS were not surprised to learn that Bill Terry had signed a contract, as all the other holdouts will do in time, they were relieved at the development because it means an end to the absurd stories that the Giant management had soured on Terry, would use him in a trade and turn his first-base job over to Sam Leslie. There never was a chance in the world that the New York bosses would do anything of the sort. They may have their differences with Terry over salary matters, but they are well aware that Bill is one of the greatest and most valuable players in either league and that he couldn't be replaced with a couple of hundred Leslies.*

Harry Taylor

SINCE THE PIRATES tried a cousin of Paul and Lloyd Waner on a spring training trip a few years ago, no club until now has presented on its roster as many as three players bearing the same name, even though unrelated.

That's a feature of the Cub roll this spring. The squad to work out on Catalina Island includes three players named Taylor. They are Harry, a new first-base candidate from the Seattle club; Danny, a holdover outfielder, and James, better known as Zack, a holdover catcher.

AND TWO OF the three Taylors are products of this region. Harry comes from the South Hills and Danny's home is in West Newton. Danny was once taken on a spring trip by the Pirates, but left the club to return home before the end of the training period.

Zack is one of the catching veterans of the majors. A recent poll of the National League showed only 35 players still in the National League who were there in 1920, and Zack is numbered among them.

THAT MARVELOUS MILE which Gene Venske ran in 4 minutes and 10 seconds the other night, though the fastest ever run on an indoor track anywhere, will rate as a record only in the United States and Canada and will be strictly an indoor mark. Venske had to buck no wind, and for that reason, it is said, the International Federation will not recognize his performance. As far as the 4:10 was concerned, there was absolutely no doubt about it, and it will stand on the indoor books, as four of the timers caught him at 4:10 flat and one caught him at 4:09 4-5.*

IT'S EITHER A feast or a famine for Pittsburgh basketball fans. Tonight they won't know where to turn, as the schedule presents the unusual situation of all three local college teams playing at home. Pitt meets Creighton, Carnegie Tech tackles Allegheny and Duquesne takes on Georgetown.

And during all of next week there will be only a single game here. Western Reserve coming Wednesday to play Pitt. The Dukes will visit Morgantown to meet West Virginia Thursday, the Skibos will hit the road to encounter Princeton, Temple and Georgetown Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and after the Reserve game the Panthers will go to Philadelphia to oppose Penn Saturday.

EXCEPT IN TRACK, Penn State has not had much luck against Pitt in recent years. Twelve seasons have passed since the Lions beat the Panthers in football, and the Center Countians have not turned in a victory over the Blue and Gold in basketball since 1927. But boxing is a different story, according to Lion supporters, and they're expected to turn out in droves for the Pitt-State dual glove meet at State College tonight in the hope of seeing their favorites get revenge.

Tom Slusser

It's rated the feature event of the winter sports season there except for the national collegiate boxing tourney on April 8 and 9. A Pittsburgh boy will be one of the new State entries. He is Tom Slusser, former Schenley High athlete, who has been boxing at 165 and 175 pounds. Johnny Napoleon, another Pittsburgher, may be seen in the 125-pound class. Among Coach Leo Houck's other hopes are Al Lewis, of Washington, Pa., 145-pound champion, and Johnny McAndrews, 135 pounds.

THOUGH THE PITT boxers will be appearing in the State College ring for the first time, tonight's meet will not be the first between the Lions and a team representing this city. The records show that on the night of February 1, 1921, Carnegie Tech's boxers took a 6-to-1 defeat from the Lions in the old Armory at State College. The single Skibo victory came in the third bout, when State's 135-pound entry accidentally fouled the Carnegie boxer. Rags Madera, North Side heavy, who turned pro later, appeared in the ring that night, but only to claim his match by default, as Carnegie did not have a heavyweight in the meet.*

NATIONAL LEAGUE

GAME TONIGHT
Toronto at Montreal Maroons.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Gordy Fraser, "iron man" of the Pittsburgh defense, who was out of the lineup with a knee injury as the Yellow Jackets downed Detroit here Thursday, will be back in harness when the local skaters meet the Windsor Bulldogs in an International Hockey League game at Duquesne Garden tonight.

Unless both Pittsburgh and Windsor gain the annual title play-off series, tonight's game will mark the last appearance of the league champion Bulldogs here this season. In view of the fact that Windsor is fourth and Pittsburgh fifth in the standings, it appears likely that one of these entries may not qualify for the championship series, in which only the teams finishing in the first four positions participate.

CRUCIAL TEST TONIGHT

Tonight's game may decide which entry is to fall by the wayside. A Pittsburgh triumph will leave the locals only a half game behind Windsor. A triumph for the visitors will give the Bulldogs a lead of two and one-half games over the Reidmen, with only 12 games remaining on the locals' slate. Both teams realize the importance of tonight's encounter, and it should be one of the most fiercely contested battles of the season.

Both teams appear to be "on" for the big game. The Jackets have dropped only one decision in their last seven starts, and the Bulldogs have gained four victories and two ties in their last six times out. Since they last appeared here, on February 4, the league champs have participated in only three games, winning over Buffalo and Syracuse, and tying with Detroit. In their last start they rolled up a 7-0 score on Syracuse, indicating that the Pittsburgh defense is going to be in for a busy evening.

JACKETS HOLD EDGE

The Jackets should enjoy a psychological edge over the visitors in that they have permitted the Bulldogs only one goal in three previous games here this season. That one goal gave Windsor a 1-1 tie on the occasion of the last Pittsburgh-Windsor meeting at the Garden, but the other two battles brought decisive Pittsburgh victories.

The exceptionally heavy advance ticket sale indicates that the crowd will be of capacity proportions. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh		Windsor
Baxter	G	Smith
Fraser	D	Gallagher
Heiss	D	J. Arbour
T. Arbour	C	Haynes
Lowking	W	Duguid
Dunning	W	Robinson

Spares: Pittsburgh—Matte, Fields, Greig, Proudfoot, Rodden, Romnes, Barton, Windsor—D. Roche, Lever, E. Roche, Phillips, Ouellette, Huggins, Brown.

CAVALRY PLAYS SHADY SIDE

Two undefeated teams, Shady Side and the 308th Cavalry, will meet in a six-chukker polo match tonight in Hunt Armory. Shady Side, with two victories to its credit, will have a slight advantage of a few points at the take off, due to handicap rules. The Cavalry has only played one game, emerging victorious over the 107th Artillery.

Polo fans also are showing much interest in the game scheduled for Monday night at the armory, when the 107th Artillery meets the South Park Polo Club. The South Park team makes its first appearance this season. The lineup:

Shadyside.		Cavalry.

Local Dogs Win In Hartford Show

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The coveted title of "best dog in the show" was conferred last night on Heather Reveller of Sporran, Scottish terrier, owned by S. S. Van Dine, writer of mystery stories, at the sixteenth annual Hartford dog show.

Winners of breed prizes included: Fox terriers, wire, Lone Eagle of Ealsmodre, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Milbank, New York City; schnauzers, Knolton Zanzi Bar, owned by Margaret Liddon Flick, Lenox, Mass.; schipperkes, Fortune's Laddy Boy, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Burke, Providence, R. I.; pointers, Bob Vance, owned by Lee and Hazel Hamilton, Pittsburgh; Irish setters, Higgins' Red Coat, owned by C. F. Neilson, Shrewsbury, N. J.; beagles, Beauty Queen, owned by W. S. Caldwell, Pittsburgh.

Home Run May Cost Minneapolis $10,000

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The ball that sailed over the fence last September 11 might have been a home run to the Minneapolis baseball club, but Mrs. Agnes Hicks says it was only a pain to her. She sued the club for $10,000 yesterday, claiming the pellet hit her with damaging force.

ALLEGHENY BOOKED

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 20.—Allegheny High School will aid in the opening of the 1932 football season with Greensburg High School, the North Siders having signed a contract to appear here as the opening attraction, Saturday, September 24.

SQUASH ENTRY LIST TO CLOSE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Entries for the first annual tourney for the Class B squash racquets championship of Pittsburgh close this evening. Action in the titular event gets under way at the Keystone Athletic Club on Monday afternoon and will be continued throughout the coming week. Officials of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association, in inaugurating the Class B competition as companion piece to the Class A affair, the third yearly edition of which gets under way at the K. A. C. on Saturday, March 5, entertain a hope that secondary stars to the number of perhaps 30 will square off for honors. Last-minute entrants may 'phone Coach Ben Pope at the site of hostilities, the number being Court 6600.

Meanwhile, at Baltimore, today, seven Steel City delegates step out into select circles of the sport as amateur aces of the recquet pastime convene in the Maryland metropolis for the 1932 renewal of the national individual and team championships. McCook Reed, former Yale tennis captain and present squash flash of the Pittsburgh Golf Club, and Dave Gilmore, southpaw luminary of the Allegheny Country Club, carry the local burden in the singles crown quest. In the inter-city squad combats, Pittsburgh will depend on Bill Bickel, Keystone mainstay; Jim Ebbert and Charley Lockhart, Golf Club contenders, and Alf Hamilton and Paul Hicks, redoubtable University Club performers.

Defeat by Levinsky Stirs Dempsey Fans

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

Jack Dempsey's showing against King Levinsky in their four-round exhibition bout in Chicago Stadium, night before last, is the most absorbing bit of gossip in the fistic realm right now.

The fellows who have been claiming all along that Dempsey is washed up and would be a sucker for the first good fighter he meets in a regulation bout are chortling that they told you so.

The fans to whom Dempsey still is a fistic idol and who just can't make themselves believe he isn't the heavyweight champion any longer, and hasn't been these last five years, are beginning to have their doubts and to admit that maybe they were wrong in allowing themselves to be carried away on the wave of Dempsey hysteria that followed in the wake of Gene Tunney's failure to make himself an appealing champion and then dropping out of the picture.

PACKS 'EM IN

Probably the most amazing feature of the whole situation is Dempsey's ability to pack 'em in for exhibition bouts whereas other fighters can't even get the fans to come out for a regular brawl. How'd you like to be Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, the current heavyweight champion, and unable to sell your fighter to the fans at all except for a "natural" like the Sharkey fight and then have your best pal and severest critic throw it up to you that Dempsey and King Levinsky, a terrible fighter in an artistic sense, turned away 10,000 fans, packed in more than 23,000 and played to close to $75,000 for an exhibition in the Chicago Stadium? Wouldn't you just love to be Mr. Jacobs and proud of your reputation as a smart and able manager of fighters?

Well, anyway, the word drifts back from Chicago that Dempsey really was pathetic in there with that crude-swinging youngster. Eighteen ringside critics voted for Levinsky as the winner, four for a draw and only two for Dempsey. And anybody within 1 per cent of the real Dempsey should be able to do plenty of tricks to the likes of Levinsky. One of the country's leading fight managers, a pal of Dempsey, said after the battle that he didn't give Dempsey a round.

'THROUGH,' FRIEND SAYS

"He's done," he said. "All through—I wish I hadn't seen him in there."

Perhaps no one realizes more than Dempsey the full truth of this friend's words.

Vignettes

Although the contestants weren't of all-America calibre, the recent Pittsburgh-Detroit International Hockey League game here was the closest approach to an all-American game that any major hockey circuit ever has offered . . . Abbie Cox, injured Pittsburgh goalie, who watched the contest from the press box, said he never before had seen so many American-born skaters in a single league game . . . In the Detroit lineup were Peters, defense man, and Goldsworthy, wing, both American-born . . . Pittsburgh contributed Romnes, Barton and Shea to swell the American-born players total to record proportions . . . Most teams in the major hockey circuits are made up entirely of Canadian-born players.

HELEN HICKS BOWS

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A four-foot missed putt yesterday cost Helen Hicks, National women's champion, the Florida women's golf crown. Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., defeated the champion in a gruelling match, 1 up, in 19 holes.

BILL TERRY SIGNS

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Bill Terry's lengthy argument with the New York Giants over his pay envelope for 1932 ended amicably yesterday when the big first baseman emerged from a 15-minute conference with Manager John McGraw and admitted he had signed on the dotted line.

LOCAL BOXERS IN ACTION

The University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech boxers are to see action tonight. Joe Orsini's Panthers have a date at Penn State College, stacking up against the crack Lion squad, while Carnegie, minus its star, Jeff Burke, tackles Syracuse's ringmen at Syracuse.

The Carnegie Tech Freshmen swimming team is host to the University School of Cleveland, this afternoon. The Carnegie Tech varsity splashers meet the Downtown Y. M. C. A. team at the some time.

Frank Wolf, Waynesburg College head coach, last night denied the board of trustees of that school had taken action in the matter of a new mentor for next year. He said the body had not met to consider the vacancy left by the resignation of James Miller.

STEVE HALAIKO BEATS DEAN

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Steve Halaiko, 138, of Buffalo, scored an easy 10-round decision over Jimmy Dean, 134½, of Erie, here last night. In other bouts Paby Face Mathison, 115½, of Buffalo, outpointed Leo Mozdy, 112½, of Erie, in six rounds; Harry Boyle, 118½, of Meadville, stopped Al Grande, 118½, of Buffalo, in five, and Joey Brown, 146½, Erie, won a decision over Harold Hicks, 148½, of Conneaut, O., in six.

Jackie Rodgers Bows To Tommy Paul

BUFFALO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Tommy Paul, 125, defeated Jackie Rodgers, 120, of Pittsburgh, in a slow 10-round bout last night. There were no knockdowns, and the Buffalo featherweight merely toyed with his opponent.

RAN STOPS TOWNSEND

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Eddie Ran, hawk-faced Polish boy, knocked out Blond Billy Townsend, of Vancouver, with one lightning drive to the head in the second round last night to win an embarrassing award—a return bout with Billy Petrolle.

CREIGHTON FOE OF PANTHERS TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

A superabundance of collegiate basketball is on the menu for local consumption tonight as the three local defenders of the city's honor entertain noteworthy foemen. A team from the West, one from the East, and a third from the North exhibit their wares here. If we had another college in town, it might be nice to have a Southern school come on and make it a quartet.

Red Fergus

In the Pitt Stadium Pavilion the Panthers meet the towering Creighton University passers, potential champions of the Missouri Valley Conference. Over at Carnegie the Tartans, who have won and lost in two starts so far this week, engage the formidable Allegheny College varsity, among the leaders in the race for tri-state district honors, and on the Bluff Duquesne Dukes play a return engagement with Georgetown, defeated in a close contest in Washington earlier in the campaign and one that has beaten Pitt since.

CREIGHTON TEAM BIG

The Pitt-Creighton game holds the most color. Creighton has an enviable record, and one of the biggest, in point of height, teams in the country. The center, Willie Schmidt, stands six feet eight inches in his socks, the tallest man on the squad of 10 that Coach A. A. Schabinger brought to town. The shortest is a mere midget compared with Schmidt, he being young Mister Parker Davis, who goes five feet 10 inches.

The Panthers have just dropped three games in a row, losing to Notre Dame, Georgetown and Navy. Creighton has won as many straight, having taken Syracuse, Washington and Drake. Coach Red Carlson plans to stick to the lineup he's been favoring as a starting weapon of late, Kowallis and Lawry at the forwards, Brown at center and Hughes and Smith at the guards. The probable lineup:

Pitt.		Creighton.
Lawry (C)	F	(C) Van Aaeren
N. Kowallis	F	Jellin
Brown	C	Schmidt
Smith	G	Dunn
Hughes	G	Miller

Referees—Beggs, Snyder. Umpire—Yans. Wallace.

TECH FACES BATTLE

Carnegie will have plenty of trouble with Allegheny, indeed, the 'Gaitors figure to enter tonight's tussle slight favorites. Westminster and Geneva have both beaten the Methodists to date. The 'Gaitors, though, captured 11 in a row before being stopped.

Tech downed Wash-Jeff Tuesday and then lost to West Virginia the following night. The Tartan lineup has been shifted about somewhat recently, due to the illness of Red Fergus. The star guard is reported somewhat improved, but he remains a doubtful starter for tonight. The probable lineup:

Carnegie.		Allegheny.
Smith	F	(C) Dennison
Silverman	F	Raleigh
Jagnow	C	Sisko
Leonard (C)	G	Berger
Kopp, Fergus	G	Jarvis

Referee—Cal Bolish. Umpire—Sam Hazle.

DUKES MEET HOYAS

Duquesne nosed out Georgetown in Washington January 19 by a 29-27 count after a difficult battle. In that game, Carolan, a clever guard, led the scoring, causing the Red and Blue much trouble. It was this same Carolan who proved a thorn in the side of the Panthers when they essayed to check the Hoyas last week. He'll be watched plenty close by the locals tonight.

Coach Davies will have the full strength of his varsity available for tonight's clash with the possible exception of MacDougal, who remains a bit under the weather. The big fellow was held out of the game with Grove City Thursday and the team physician may keep him under the covers again tonight. The probable lineup:

Duquesne		Georgetown.
Feldman	F	King
Cerrito	F	Crowley
McGeever (C)	C	Murphy
Moore	G	(C) Neil
Hefter	G	Carolan

Referee—Leo Mackey. Umpire—Walter Waite.

TONY PET SIGNS

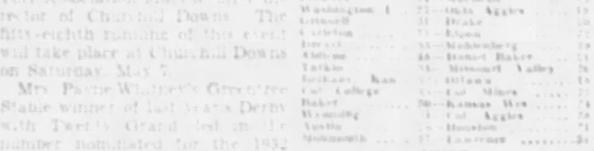
Tony Piet, the Pirates' young second baseman from the Wichita farm, who has been ill for several weeks, was reported last night to have signed his contract. There was no official confirmation at the home office, the report coming out of Chicago. According to the information available, Piet came to terms with Manager George Gibson while the first squad of Bucs were en route to the Coast. Tony's home is in Chicago.

DREYFUSSIANS

Stories They Tell of the Late Barney Dreyfuss

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The famous Flying Dutchman from Carnegie could have reaped a fortune from the American League had he chosen to jump with other stars when the junior organization arrived to dispute the reign of the older league. Honus had to show scorn for the enemy's riches, but this he was able to do.



Barney admired Wagner for the spirit shown by Honus when the American League agents tempted him with fabulous amounts. Dreyfuss sleuths were on the trail of the enemy and they knew what had transpired. It seems that several of the Bucco stars talked with the A. L. agents regarding contracts. Barney was busy and his counter offers had a bad effect on the "outlaws." The players sought held a meeting and agreed to do nothing for 24 hours. But in this period Dreyfuss was able to satisfy and sign the stars with the exception of Wagner. Honus said he had given his word he would not sign with anybody for 24 hours, and when Dreyfuss displayed the other documents he still refused to break his word.

HOLT, BEATEN, GIVEN WIN

Billy Holt, of Homewood, was handed the Negro welterweight championship of Pittsburgh on a silver platter at the end of his 10-round main bout with Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, at the Kaphan Arena last night. It is a hollow honor for Randall beat him all of the way outsmarting and outspeeding him and never losing the upper hand. It was one of the Tiger's easiest bouts.

Holt fought one of his coolest battles, standing back and permitting his man to stab and peppher him and making few attempts to lead until the last few rounds by which time he was [illegible] behind. With the exception of some body punching in the clinches and one solid right to the jaw that jolted Randall and made him hold on just before the end of the ninth round, his offensive efforts were nil. Randall made and dominated the fight and won at least eight of the rounds. How he failed to get a single vote from the officials is a mystery. The Tiger weighed 149 pounds and Holt 145.

Lee Bala, of Donora, outfought Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, both 156's, in the eight-round semi-final. Ken Harytaire, New Kensington Negro, 136, subbing on short notice against Eddie Guba, of Clairton, 137, in the second bout, had his left eye cut in the opening round and Referee Eddie Kennedy promptly halted the scrap. Walter Ketchel, of the East End, 171, another substitute, bested Mike Bazzone, of McKeesport, 162½, in the six-round opener, a slugfest.

The crowd was small. L. K. Meininger and Frank Ferris were the judges. Kennedy refereed all of the bouts and Tommy Grant was the timer, with Ray Eberle the announcer. Willie Davies, of Charleroi, and Jackie Wilson, East End Negro bantamweight, will box the main bout in the same arena next Friday night.

Between Rounds

Two Negroes will arrive tomorrow morning for his negro bout at the Duquesne Gardens on the night of March 2. Tommy Ryan, manager of Tuffy Griffiths, Pittsburgh welterweight, is here. He is [illegible] the old [illegible] the Duquesne gym, where he will [illegible] the [illegible] tomorrow afternoon.

They are planning another bout in New York between Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight champion of the world, and Jim London, the present champion. By JULIUS LEVIN

Coach Everhart's Uniontown High School quintet, boasting a string of eight successive league victories will be out to clinch the championship of Section X of the W. P. I. A. L. tonight when it opposes Greensburg on the local court.

The contest originally was scheduled for last night but was postponed by mutual consent of the coaches.

The basketball committee of the W. P. I. A. L. is meeting at the Fort Pitt Hotel today to arrange pairings for the annual elimination series.

ALLEGHENY CLINCHES TITLE

Allegheny High clinched the group championship in Section 2 of the City Senior League yesterday when it defeated South Hills, 37 to 14, to register its eleventh triumph, unmarred by a set back, but the titular hopes of Schenley High were rocked when the runner-up Connelley Trade outfit handed the Belleflelders their second setback in 10 games, 44 to 18. Schenley still leads in Section 1, but by only a slender margin.

In other Senior League conquests Perry walloped Allegheny Vocational, 40 to 8; Oliver set down Langley, 35-21; Fifth Avenue was pressed to beat Allderdice, 19-14, and Westinghouse nosed out Peabody, 25 to 21. Latimer and Schenley won the City Junior League contests carded.

CHARLEROI VICTOR

In the W. P. I. A. L. victories were returned by Charleroi, Beaver Falls, Rankin, Vandergrift, Ambridge, Slowe, Swissvale, Washington, Coraopolis, Redstone Canonsburg, Mt. Lebanon, Latrobe, Butler, New Castle and New Kensington.

Crafton, East Pike Run, Aliquippa, Clairsville, East Bethlehem, Midland, Peters, Georges, California, South Brownsville, Bellevue, Pitcairn, Port City, Findlay, German Township and South Union also returned triumphant. Central Catholic won a non-league affray.

OIL CITY WINS

OIL CITY, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Oil City High School clinched the Section II, District 10, W. P. I. A. L. championship last night by defeating Franklin, 28-23.

CRAWFORDS GET BILLY NIXON

Billy Nixon, one of the best-known of Pittsburgh's big colony of diamond stars, has been appointed booking agent of the Pittsburgh Crawfords Negro baseball club. Announcement that the Crawfords had acquired Nixon was made today by Owner W. A. Greenlee.

Billy Nixon

Nixon was a star outfielder for many seasons. His career carried him to Cleveland, New Orleans, Portland and other cities. He had charge of the 319th Infantry club during the war period, and for two years after the war he managed the Franklin club, of the Franklin-Oil City League.

The new Crawford official is a resident of Carnegie. Throughout his career he was known as an aggressive player. His large circle of baseball connections should make him a valuable man for the Greenlee organization. Oscar Charleston, first baseman, is the manager of the Crawfords.

Fight Results

At Kaphan Arena, Billy Holt defeated Tiger Joe Randall, 10 rounds; Lee Bala defeated Mickey Solomen, 6 rounds; Eddie Guba won on technical knockout over Ken Harytaire, 1 round; Walter Ketchel defeated Mike Bazzone, 6 rounds.

At Rye, Pa., Jackie Helsinger defeated Jimmy Swan, 10 rounds; Bobby Faye Mathis defeated Leo Moore, 6 rounds; Harry Burns defeated Al Grande, 6 rounds; Jess Brown defeated Harold Hicks, 6 rounds.

At Charleston, W. Va., Mickey Davis defeated Johnny Catalino, 10 rounds; Billy Greer knocked out (technical) Jeff Koerner, 3 rounds; Marine Devore defeated Benny Bass, 6 rounds.

At Buffalo, Tommy Paul defeated Jackie Rodgers, 10 rounds.

At New York, Eddie Rich knocked out Bobby Brown, 2 rounds; Chuck Devlin defeated Young Terry, 10 rounds; Lew Feld took decision over Kid Francis, 10 rounds; Ed (Kid) Wolfe and Babe Joe Gans drew, 10 rounds; Knute Oxnerchalli Martin defeated Harry Byrne, 8 rounds; Mike Ballerino defeated Bobby Dreyfuss, 10 rounds.

At Cleveland, Larry Pruitt defeated Rene Gilbert, 6 rounds; Jackie Purvis defeated Tug Phillips, 10 rounds.

At Niles, Mich., Bud Jones defeated Red Chatfield, 10 rounds; Bob O'Brien defeated Tom Nichols, 8 rounds.

At Hollywood, Celerino Garcia won by technical knockout over Vearl Whitehead, 7 rounds; Ralph Chong defeated Bob Pat Cody, 6 rounds.

At Los Angeles, Cal., Dynamite Jackson defeated Billy Greene, 1 round.

At Miami Beach, Webb defeated Jim Harper, 10 rounds.

FRISCH DENIES REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Frankie Frisch, the old Fordham flash, settled down on a rubbing table at the New York baseball headquarters yesterday and denied he was a holdout in the strictest sense of the word. Frisch plans to carry his contract with him when he reports to spring camp at Bradenton, Fla., early next month and then talk things over with President Sam Breadon.

SCHENLEY MERWEM WIN

Schenley High School's swimmers won another meet yesterday when they defeated Taylor Allderdice, 32 to 27, in the former's tank.

DEMPSEY STILL UNDAUNTED

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A few of King Levinsky's shots may have shaken Jack Dempsey Thursday night, but they didn't shake the comeback ideas out of the old mauler's head.

The tour is going on just as planned except that Dempsey will do less handshaking, will be seen less in public outside of the ring and will alter his training routine.

After reading accounts of his exhibition with the cocky Kingfish, most of which said, or inferred "Dempsey is through," Jack scowled and said:

"So they think I'm through again, eh? Well, I'm not. I'm going right on. I'll be back. I'll fight Levinsky with six-ounce gloves. I can still sock with regulation fighting gloves on."

Perkins and Tryon Advance in Tourney

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Long favorites to win the tournament, T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion and his sharpshooting partner, Howard Tryon, of Detroit, went into semi-finals of the international amateur four-ball matches here today after two decisive early victories.

Perkins and Tryon were paired against Tommy Goodwin, of Monroe, N. Y., and Criest Durang, of Brooklyn.

The other semi-finals match was between F. H. Hohlfelder, of Cleveland, teamed with Dan Soccoli, of New Britain, Conn., and Tommy Avrock and Jack Toomer, crack Jacksonville (Fla.) golfers.

SCHOOL QUINTS ARE PAIRED

Leetsdale, of Section II, was paired with Zelienople, of Section XVII, and Swissvale, of Section XI, was drawn against East Pittsburgh, of Section XVII, for the first round games in the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League's annual basketball championship elimination series at a meeting of the basketball committee of the organization at the Fort Pitt Hotel today.

The eliminations open at the Pitt Stadium on Friday of next week. Only four teams are to participate in first round games, the other 14 drawing byes into the second round.

The winner of the W. P. I. A. L. title will be determined by March 22.

Goldenson Vanities Meet Cumberland

After defeating the Pirates at Fairmount, W. Va., on Monday night and handing the Tarentum Girls a trimming on Thursday night at Tarentum, the Vanities are in excellent shape to meet the Cumberland "Y" Business Girls tonight at the South Side Market House. This game should prove to be the best of the season and will be a real test for the Vanities.

Neither of these teams has lost a game so far this season. The entire receipts is to be used to defray camp expenses for the Pittsburgh Girls' Club at Sandy Lake. The probable lineup:

Business Girls		Vanities
Price	F.	Johnson
Sullivan	F.	O'Connor
Rutland	C.	Mertz
Lee	G.	Shamis
Andrew	G.	Davis
Ritter	G.	Miller

WHEREAS, The Director of the Department of Public Works has reported that the work of repairing said roadway can be done by the Department of Public Works; and

WHEREAS, The Director of the Department of Public Works has reported that the work of repairing said roadway can be done by the Department of Public Works at a cost not to exceed Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00);

BUSY LADY -:- Telling on Hollywood And Advising It -:- NEW SHOWS -:- The Critics Look And Speak

Adela Rogers Hyland Has Dual Literary Role At Studio

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20.

A toast to the ladies. For the first time since the days of June Mathis at Metro, a women is to be editorial assistant to a studio head.

The studio is R-K-O and the woman is Adela Rogers Hyland. Negotiations were completed yesterday and the popular novelist assumes her duties at once. She will confer with David Selznick over stories, offer suggestions and seek new material.

John Barrymore

This will not interfere with her writing "The Truth About Hollywood," which, as I reported several days ago, will be made into a picture by R-K-O.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Yesterday, it seems, Val Paul, studio manager, ordered a dressing room to be prepared for John Barrymore.

When he came around to inspect it later on, he was amazed to discover Dorothy Lee's on one side and Kitty Kelly's on the other.

"Look here!" exclaimed Paul, "what's the idea of putting Barrymore up here?"

HERE'S GOSSIP

Guests at one of Hollywood's hill-top mansions are wont to admire two modernistic ornaments. Actually, they're automobile crank-shafts, chromium plated. . . Here's a canny racket. The other day an English actor received a card reading: "Information of great value to you has come to our notice. If you will send 50 cents, it will be forwarded." Piqued, the actor sent the half-dollar to the indicated address. By the return mail he received a two-inch clipping from a suburban paper. It reported his and his wife's attendance at a bridge party.

Edwina Booth

Nils Asther plans to open a combination antique shop and portrait studio. He'll specialize in "old European pieces" . . . Hugh Herbert's lucky number is 5. The other week-end at Agua Caliente he placed a $50 bet on a 5 to 1 shot in the fifth race. The horse came in fifth . . . Pretty Rochelle Hudson is dividing her time these days between John Arledge and young Von Brecht of the candy Von Brechts . . . Carey Wilson phones to say that he wants someone to give him a dog; only he's anooty and wants to pick out the dog . . . John Boles will play the lead in "Back Streets" for Universal. He's been in every John M. Stahl picture there except "Strictly Dishonorable," and an infected wisdom tooth prevented that. . . Betty Bronson, Edwina Booth and Mary Nolan are to be in "The Midnight Patrol," a Monogram picture produced by Charlie Burr.

THRILLER PLANNED

The presence of Martin Flavin at Paramount is explained in the announcement that "Through the Window" will be produced after all. This is the thriller that Flavin and Joe Sherman wrote last year. Now, Paramount plans to make it with Chester Morris, Carole Lombard and Regis Toomey in leading roles. "The Glass Key," hitherto scheduled for Morris, is postponed.

The Girl

Weird World Shown in 'Freaks'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Grotesque and even gruesome is the world revealed in the picture at the Penn Theater called "Freaks"—for it is the world of prodigies and human monsters, the sideshow of a circus. The bearded lady has a baby, and the freaks rejoice because it's a girl and is going to have a beard. The legless man serves the drinks at the wedding feast, leaping about on the table where the sword swallower and the fire eater feast upon their peculiar delicacies. Every sort of malformation and deformity, from the human seal to the living skeleton, takes part in the drama of pathos and shudders that is unfolded.

Mr. Seibel

The pathos comes through the love of Hans, the dwarf, for the Queen of the Air, instead of the faithful Frieda, a dwarf who loves him. The Queen of the Air learns that he has inherited a fortune—so she marries him and then poisons him. But at the wedding feast the Freaks, with their weird ceremonial, have received her as one of themselves, and they wreak a weird vengeance upon her for her attempt to poison her dwarf husband. The closing scenes in the storm, with the uncanny monsters pursuing their victim through the slush and mud, crawling like monsters of the deep sea, is ghoulish enough to have come from the brain of Poe.

By way of contrast, the stage show is particularly graceful and frivolous. Its central star is Joe Cook, who manifests humorous invention of rare versatility, with its climax in the revolving orchestra of the last curtain. There are some adagio dancers of expert agility and a comedian with one joke at "two-thirty," but Joe Cook is the chef who gives taste to the broth.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Perusing a press announcement concerning "Hot Cha," which comes to the Nixon Monday with Bert Lahr, as the star, and Buddy Rogers in a featured spot, we weren't exactly sure it concerned a real honest-to-goodness Flo Ziegfeld production or no. The last paragraph contained the simon-pure identification, as

"A profusion of glorified girls will fascinate the public with their loveliness, beautiful gowns, youth and talent."

Now there is no doubt about it—"Hot Cha" is a genuine Ziegfeld show.

The management of the Alvin has decided to celebrate Washington's Birthday, and at the same time supply additional seats for afternoon show-shoppers, by giving a special holiday matinee Monday. Hence, Ethel Barrymore, in "The School for Scandal," will have a daylight opening instead of a night introduction. The revival of the Sheridan comedy is under the auspices of the Professional Players, being fifth in the series of its subscription plays for the season. Other matinees will be Wednesday and Saturday.

Nina's Ghost Parades in Stanley

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Nell Kelly, who has romped into our town before, is romping on the Stanley stage again, helping celebrate the theater's fourth birthday. She's a pawing cyclone. When she gets through with Dick Powell he's satisfied to ride away in the invalid chair that little Bernie Armstrong wheels onto the stage. And, Richard, you better keep up the payments on that chair. After a week of such four-a-days, you're liable to need it for keeps.

Ruth Chatterton, who knows something, is the party of first importance on the screen. She's appearing in the film version of Philip Barry's play, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow." This was good drama when seen in the Nixon last season. As a movie it is better. Elaboration in scene and action has given it a wider scope of interest. The story is that of one woman and two men, with Paul Lukas and the late Robert Ames being the man.

SHADES OF MR. O'NEILL

Like Eugene O'Neill's Nina of many interludes, the lady in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," has a good husband, but becomes interested in a famous neurologist, who happens into the town.

Which leaves the lady with the Nina-complex in a dilemma. Shall she stay with husband or go away with neurologist?. This neurologist, in the person of Mr. Lucas, is a very fascinating fellow. The fact that her husband needs mothering as much as her son, solves her problem.

LOTS OF CANDLES

Back to the stage again, we find Rowdy Nell and Dick Powell aren't the only candles on the cake. Here, reading from left to right, are the others. Britt Wood, harmonica clown; the Three Rhythm Dancers, the Ten Jubilee Singers, Monroe and Grant, novel entertainers; Roy Sheldon, a versatile lad, and the 24 Steppin' Beauties. There's plenty going on!

The curtain dropped, we grabbed our hat, retrieved our nice blue scarf that had been scuffled six seats away and made for the exit, humming "Happy Birthday to You."

New Chaney On Screen

Creighton Chaney, son of the late Lon Chaney, has been awarded a long-term contract as a player in RKO-Radio and Pathe pictures. The contract specifies that the young man be known as Creighton Chaney, and under no circumstances as "Lon Chaney, Jr." and that he is not promised featured or starring roles, but will be given ample opportunity to demonstrate his ability to earn his own way as an actor.

Young Chaney has never played in motion pictures, although he was closely associated with the industry through his father's activities. He is six feet three inches tall, weighs 205 pounds and bears a close resemblance to the Lon Chaney of 10 years ago, it is said.

Children's Play Here Next Saturday

The Children's Theater of New York will present "Hans Brinker, or The Silver Skates" in the Nixon next Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The play offers enjoyment to both children and adults, it is stated. The cast will include Viola Roache, Carolyn Humphreys, Gene Magnus, Sally Gabler, Robert Josselyn, Charles Aitken, Wilton Graff, Allen Mathes and Harold Winkler.

Gilbert Writes Own Screen Story

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has selected "Downstairs," written by the actor himself as an original story for the screen, as his next starring picture. Monta Bell, whose last directorial work was on "Personal Maid" and who in the past made "The Torrent," "Man, Woman and Sin" and "The Bellamy Trial," will direct the Gilbert film.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 20.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Flew in from Chicago. Was going over to Claremore, but the hotels are all so full, going to have to stay here in the edge of town. I see where some line is going to make aviation pay by taking it out of the pilots' salary—when they start hiring cheap pilots I will stop flying. That's what has built up what confidence in aviation we have—the experience, character and dependability of our pilots. I think they are just about the highest type bunch of men we have. I am interviewing all the candidates to see what they're running on, if anything just outside a desire. So I got to see our Gov. Bill Murray.

Yours, WILL.

Reckless Age On Screens

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Charles Buddy Rogers, coming to town in person Monday as a Ziegfeld star, is being seen on both the Davis and Enright screens in "This Reckless Age." This is the last film Mr. Rodgers made before deserting Hollywood.

Nothing very new about the film, it, none-the-less, is pleasant drama and manages to entertain, chiefly because of the work of the cast. While young Rogers' emoting won't knock you off the chair, he fits all right into his college boy role.

Richard Bennett, cast as a father, is the important one. He creates an element of sincerity and completeness for the whole drama. He is also well supported by Francis Starr, as a mother; Maude Eburne, as a hired-girl, and Charles Ruggles, as a godfather, who admits he's quaint.

It is the godfather, too, who gets the girl in the finale, the girl being his godchild, Frances Dee. Of course, the movie-makers leave a girl for Buddy Rogers, too. She is Peggy Shannon.

The story is one of those youth versus age affairs, with both being reconciled and tolerant of the other at the fadeout.

WIDOW OF RICH MAGICIAN DIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Ending quietly a life once full of luxury, exciting triumphs and bizarre adventures, Mrs. Adelaide Hermann, 78-year-old widow of the magician, "Hermann the Great," died in a hospital yesterday after a week's illness.

How much remains of a fortune which once provided the Hermann's a palatial home on Long Island, a steam yacht and a private railroad car with a silver bathtub for their travels, was undetermined. Mrs. Hermann had no children, and acquaintances said she kept her affairs a strict secret.

Until four years ago, the woman who rode in tights in a "velocipede troupe," was shot out of a cannon, caught bullets in a plate and did aerial dancing, continued on the stage in her own right. Her last performance was in Brooklyn in 1928. Since then she has been writing her memoirs, and had just finished them when she was taken ill.

Stimson's Notes Fine to Amuse Boys in Trenches

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Japanese requested the Chinese to retreat voluntarily. It was the best offer the Chinese got that day.

But they refused to retreat without cause. They like to be chased.

This is one war open and above board. The Japanese general has given Floyd Gibbons the league schedule of 154 battles for the summer. With a world series in October with any nation that wants it.

Before the Japs attacked they told General Pa Too-Chins: "We shall bombard Shanghai at 5 tomorrow afternoon."

Gen. Too-Chins wired back: "Come earlier. We have tea at 3."

All the soldiers on both sides look exactly alike. The only way to tell the spies is that they are getting fat from eating with both armies.

The result is that the war is being spoiled by fraternizing in the front line trenches. The Japs are running out of reading matter and are yelling across no honorable gentleman's land:

"Hey, Too-Chins, send that Stimson note over, will ya, when ye're through with it?"

Post-Mortem

So you have gone, and here within this room
Where we have loved each small thing speaks of you.
And this, that was a palace, is a tomb,
And I have wept as you would wish me to.
Wearied and effortless, I lie alone,
Certain of only this, since you have gone;
The law of love is like a hard, bright stone—
And all your pretty words stay on and on;
I count the echoes unbelievingly,
I shred my mind with hope and fear and pain,
While you walk on to other loves than me,
And my desire will not touch you again.

Your mouth was but a lie, your arms a snare . . .
Why did you leave your slippers by the chair?

The Retort Swelegant

In "Sky Devils," due at the Rivoli soon, Spencer Tracy and George Cooper serve as rookies in the air force, and George is tricked into doing a solo. When he discovers he's alone in the plane he crashes into the ambulance sent out to pick up his remains. He walks away very content with himself.

Cooper does the same stunt frequently and once crashes into a hay stack, completely wrecking the plane.

"Oh, boy!" he ejaculates, "what a landing. I say any landing you can walk away from is a good landing."

"Yeah," snaps Tracy, "bring down just one more of our planes and you'll be a German Ace!"

Of All Remarks

A girl friend of this column called a certain chap to tell him she couldn't go to his party as she had been "suddenly taken drunk."

Incidentally

One of George Martin's sincere drinking pals called him last week to ask what day it was. "Monday," replied George.

Then the pal thanked him profusely and remarked that if the liquor got any worse they would have to put calendars on every corner instead of street signs.

As a matter of record, no respectable speakeasy has a calendar or a clock.

Of Course!

"The weather here," writes Harold Myren LeRoy from Hollywood, "is unusual—as usual."

Haw!

Allen Jenkins, who plays Frankie Wells in "Blessed Event," the new hit melodrama, was slugged by a couple of thugs outside his house, beaten unconscious and robbed of his wallet and overcoat the other night. It's one of those true stories about an actor that sounds press-agenty; but Jenkins has a pair of black orbs to prove it.

In the show Jenkins plays the toughest gangster ever seen on a stage. Maybe it was a form of criticism.

Oop!

Added to our list of boners in current movies: The episode in "Her Majesty, Love," when Ben Lyon and Ford Sterling, sitting at adjacent desks, exchange notes to avoid speaking to each other. According to the close-ups—both notes are in the same handwriting.

We feel picky today.

Behind the Times

Claude Hopkins, the orchestra conductor (discussing the long-missing Judge Crater), says: "Has anybody stopped to think that he may be found under the Sunday paper?"

O Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested additions to the Dictionary of Similes: Arthur "Bugs" Baer: Listless as a commuter handing his monthly ticket to the conductor; also: Harmless as a baby's slap; also: 4 per cent beer has no more kick than a barefooted canary. . . . Branch Cabell: Hearts like muffled drums are beating. . . . Ted Cook: Leisurely as a dentist who has your mouth propped open. . . . Phoebe Atwood Taylor: Smiled like a leading man taking his tenth curtain call. . . . Fred Allen: My salary looked as if it had been made up in the miniature department.

Add Rackets

The latest of the gags being pulled locally goes this way: A beggar enters a restaurant and palms the proprietor for a sandwich and a saucer of Java. Later he asks for a ciggie. He gets it and reaches into his own pocket for a match. As he does so from his pocket tumbles a $10 bill, which the proprietor usually snatches, remonstrating with the "phony" for begging when he can afford to pay. He takes out the amount of the feed, gives the beggar the change and then orders him away.

The following day at the bank the restaurateur is informed that the ten spot is counterfeit.

Below the Belt Stuff

"Dear Daddy: I received your Valentine and it was so funny I had to laugh. Ben Bernie is here at Miami Beach at our cabana reading what I am writing you, and he just said to tell you that you are a big stiff and that he can prove it, which I do not believe. What does he mean, daddy? Nursie is fine, also Walda. Love and hugs. Your Valentine, Gloria."

Sotto Voce

Philip J. Burns Jr.: Okay! We all discover sooner or later that we're only here on a short visit. Best to Capt. Hayes, Hodges, et al.

Marionettes Present 'Washington' Today

This afternoon in Carnegie Music Hall the Jean Gros French Marionettes will give a performance of a super-marionette pageant, entitled "The Romance of George Washington." Fifty marionettes operated with 1,000 strings by a company of trained puppeteers, will appear. Scenes will be shown of the early youth of Washington, as well as Washington as a young man, and later his life at Mt. Vernon. Following the pageant, which is part of the two hundredth anniversary celebration of the birth of Washington, the marionettes will show their accomplishments as acrobats, singers and dancers.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Risking drowning in the Atlantic off New London, Conn., a Hearst Metrotone News cameraman films the sinking of a submarine from its bridge. The amazing pictures, the first of their kind ever made, are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, being seen in the Penn, Fulton, and other theaters. The undersea boat descends while going at full speed until the water is rushing around the cameraman's knees. The pictures show not only the views taken by his camera, but also the entire experience of the cameraman, and pictures of what happens in the interior of the submarine.

A DRIVING FOOL

Sir Malcolm Campbell, British daredevil, is shown upon his return to Daytona Beach, Fla., with his famous Bluebird racing car. He will try to exceed his own world's record of 245 miles an hour.

Hugh Gibson, United States Ambassador to Belgium and America's representative at the disarmament conference in Geneva, outlines the position of the United States to the delegates.

WINTER IN THE PARK

Although Yellowstone Park is barred to the public during the winter, a Hearst Metrotone News expedition, accompanied by United States Rangers, penetrates the deep snows to obtain pictures of the bewildering beauty in the geyser region.

Champion divers give a sensational exhibition at Miami Beach, Fla., with two and three of the experts leaping simultaneously from high platforms.

The amazingly lifelike figures upon which women's latest gowns are draped, are shown in the making in a Paris factory.

The town of Binche, Belgium, celebrates a visit made 400 years ago by the Spanish rulers of that country.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Nursing a Grouch Is No Way To Find Happiness

These people who go around nursing busted hearts—how should we treat them?

Should we hand them a lot of love and kisses—agree with them that life has handed them all the worst breaks?

"Anxious" thinks we should and she's considerably burnt up because instead of encouraging bellyaches we advise bucking up and making a fresh start.

She's sure we never had any real troubles of our own or we wouldn't be such a mean, ornery, heartless hunks of tripe and she dasts us to print her remarks.

Nothing could keep us from it.

DISAGREES WITH ADVICE

"Dear Sally:

"Tell it to Sally and she'll tell it to you. What a title. You do tell them, and how.

"People come to you for sympaths but you in turn insult them. Your advice to practically all of them is to go out and make new friends and forget your broken heart. Oh, yes. It's the easiest thing in the world for you to say. Forget.

"But I wonder how you would respond to advice like that if someone you loved deatly was taken by another or just vanished for some unknown reason.

"I loved once, but lost. I go out with others too but I have not yet met another who came up to his standard. I'm not an idealist by far. The only thing I ask of any man is that he must be clean and a gentleman and that certainly is not asking for the world.

"I'm not asking you for advice. No one can advise another on any love affair. We do as we see fit. It is true that going out with others helps for a while but real love can't ever be forgotten in spite of what you or anyone else says.

A DARE

"As for marrying just for the sake of saying I'm married. I should say not. I wouldn't think of ruining any man's life without there being love on both sides.

"Why not be a bit more considerate of the heart when you're answering your correspondents, instead of telling them how foolish they are and telling them to go out and forget?

"I'm daring you to print this letter just as I've written it to you, and let your readers pass their comments on it. I'm all set for a good old argument.

"ANXIOUS."

Want an argument? Here it comes.

Why do I tell people to buck up and forget it? Because that's what they ask me to tell them. They ask for help. That is help the only help I can possibly offer them.

Would it help them to say that they're the world's greatest sufferers? Would it heal their hurts if I advise them to crawl deeper into their gloom and to turn away from everything that might make them forget their grievances?

No, it wouldn't.

But, of course, that is really what you want me to do.

Ninety-nine out of a hundred "broken hearts" who write to this column do not really want help at all. They simply want publicity. They want to see their terrible tale in print. They want to have the whole world make a fuss over them with me leading the chorus.

Long since they have exhausted their families and immediate friends with their bleats, blubberings and bellyaches and so now I'm nominated to take over the job.

Nothing doing.

NURSING A GROUCH

I know what will help them. I know, because I have found that help myself, in my own hard times, and I'll pass the good word on. But I will not encourage people in their cowardly grieving, nor provide them with alibis for their selfishness and laziness, nor otherwise aid them to make more of a nuisance of themselves than they are already.

And now a word for you, ma'm. Like most folks who are coddling a blasted life you believe that strong, cheerful people get that way because they've never had the big time tragedies that have hit you. Get over it. Tragedies come to all of us. But some have the spunk to go on, and some take the count.

And now you're taking the count and you think it is because you are mourning a lost love. Piffle! You're just nursing a grouch, sister, and alibiing a lot of conceit which makes you consider your grief the greatest in the world.

Well, grieve on if you must, but I warn you that it will buy you nothing. If you really want to find happiness again you can do so. But not that way.

"THE LIKES OF WOMEN"—WHAT?

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

A young girl 15 "writes in" to the lady who's speaking—and says on a pale grey paper with an excellently plain script—"Please make more MEN in your pictures—we are just as interested, we girls, in the men you draw as we are in the girls!" The first delightful thought is "thanks, thanks very much for the interest in the men I draw." There was a time when the entire paper I drew for—and maybe the rest of the FOLKS, as well—made loud and clever fun of the men I drew. I will appropriate that compliment—even though "Fifteen" might have meant men AS JUST MEN, aside from my drawing of them.

I think she meant both, so that is the reason for this picture. I am interested in the men too "Fifteen," and so are all women, I think. We sit in the light, as far as that idea is concerned, but WHICH KIND OF MEN WOMEN LIKE BEST is a dark room in our house of realization. We do not know—even we women—what man appeals to the greatest number of women.

I know this—I have always had and have a fixed and dogged belief that the amount of hair upon a man's head has nothing to do with a woman's admiration for him—and less than nothing to do with her serious regard. BEAUTY in a man does not have the same meaning in a woman's lexicon that the word BEAUTY in a woman does in a man's little description-book.

We try to believe that most women give their admiration and love to men who are intelligent and good. But we know—such is the elasticity of that strange mixture called a woman's—capacity-to-love, that when he isn't, she believes firmly that he IS!

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

At a Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct for a girl to applaud after a dance?

2. If a girl goes to a dance with a man, is it correct for her to accept an invitation to dance from another man? If it is, is it necessary for her to ask her friend if she may accept it?

3. What should a girl say to a boy when he says his thanks to her after a dance is over?

HENRIETTE

1. It is not customary for a girl to do this . . . this seems to be the prerogative of the man only.

2. Yes, she may accept invitations to dance with other men . . . this is what a dance is for. The young man comes up to ask for the dance, and, when the girl has said "yes," then the man turns to her escort and says, "Do you mind?" and the girl says, as they leave, "Will you excuse us, please." All of this is purely usual, and not as it sounds in print, but it is a necessary gesture for both to make. The answer will, of course, be taken for granted, but the requests are mannerly.

3. The girl, when the boy thanks her for the dance, says something that indicates that she too has enjoyed the dance: "It was delightful, Bob," or "I enjoyed the dance so much, Mr. Allen."

A Matter of Taste

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister is to be married at home, and I am to be her maid of honor. Since I am her sister, would it be incorrect for me to give her a miscellaneous shower?

Although there aren't any definite rules and regulations about the giving of showers, there are certain things that seem to govern them. An done, to my mind, is the giving of a shower by a member of the family. The very fact that apparently this has occurred to you as not being quite in good taste makes one stop to think about it. The giving of a shower is most obviously a bid for gifts. If the shower is given by a few girl friends of the bride-to-be, or by a club to which she belongs, then naturally it is in better taste than if the shower is given by someone in her family, someone a little too much "interested." There would certainly be ground for criticism for such a party.

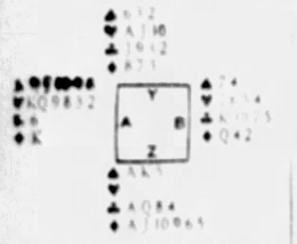
Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

Can Z Make 5-Diamonds Doubled?



Contracting went as follows: Z, 2-Diamonds; A, 2-Hearts; Y, 2-No Trumps; B, Pass. Without even one heart Z could not stand no trumps; nor did he wish to show clubs, so he bid 3-Diamonds. A showed his second suit by bidding 3-Spades. Y passed, but B felt obliged to shift to 4-Hearts. Z ventured 5-Diamonds, and A doubled, ending contracting.

The opening lead was Q of spades because Y's no-trumps had shown two heart tricks. The spade lead made it hard work for the declarer to fulfil his high contract. He must gain at least one entry to dummy to enable him to discard a losing spade upon Y's Ace of hearts. He also needed to lead clubs from dummy, to obtain a finesse.

Z won the opening lead with his K. Then he led his ace of trumps, hoping for a favorable division of trumps, and found it. The lone K dropped at the left. Many players would have tried to coax out the missing Q by leading the J, but Z figured that the guarded Q at his right never would be played upon his J, thus leaving dummy open to entry. Z calculated that the only certain method of gaining entry to dummy was to lead his 5 of diamonds, overtake it with Y's 7, if B refused to pla, his Q entry would be gained to dummy, in case B decided to play his Q entry could be had on the next lead, by leading his 6 and overtaking with Y's 8.

When Z led his 5 and overtook with dummy's 7, B won his Q and led back a spade. Z played his Ace and then he put dummy in by leading his 6 of diamonds, and overtaking with Y's 8. Laying down dummy's Ace of hearts, Z discarded his losing spade. He led back dummy's J of clubs and B covered with his K. The Ace won the trick, but another entrance into dummy was impossible unless clubs happened to be divided 3-2. In a vain hope that some good might be accomplished, Z laid down his Q of clubs. When A showed out of clubs, Z had to lose another trick. He led his 4 and gave B a trick with his 10 of clubs, but the doubled contract of 5-Diamonds was fulfilled without trouble.

Spectacular hands are interesting, and ultimately one should learn how to recognise them quickly and play them correctly. But ability to cope with the less talked about holdings is more vital to success, because they are with you nearly all the time. A hand like the following offers little of particular interest at first sight, and yet it gave considerable concern to those who just dealt it.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Happy With Lillian's Attitude

I watched Lillian furtively as I told her that Dicky had offered to help me with my revision of my third act. If my one desire had not been to keep her from re-reading the speeches of Vickers that she had typed without recognizing the caricature of Dicky which I subconsciously had drawn, I should have insisted that she share with Dicky in the revision. But with the fear in my mind that there would be such recognition on her part I had given no such invitation. What would her reaction be to this omission on my part when she had offered to help me?

I might have spared my scruples and my speculation. Neither I nor anyone else could have told what was passing behind Lillian's poker face as she made the animated if perfunctory disclaimer that my question entailed.

Of course I don't mind," she said. "Dicky naturally has first choice in a matter of this sort. I'm glad he's that much interested," she went on, and I had a vague impression that this last speech was more natural than the first one. And the surest way to make him enthusiastic over the thing is to make him feel that he has a finger, or two or three of 'em, in the pie. When are you going to begin work?"

"In about an hour," I answered, then added hastily, "he made me promise to lie down and go to sleep 'til he was ready to help me."

"He would," Lillian retorted, then repented of her little fling. "But he's a darling, old Dickeybird, just the same," she said fondly, and if he wants to slip up on his perch and spread his wings for this third act, who is going to say him nay, and you'd better take his advice and let him find you asleep, or pretending to be, when he comes up to boss the revision. Anything I can do to help you? I'm a lady's maid par excellence, you know."

"Indeed, I do know," I said briskly. "You're an ever-present aid in time of trouble, but there isn't a single thing you can do for me now. I am feeling wonderfully fit, although I admit I am a bit sleepy."

"Then the sooner you get to sleep, the better." Lil said practically. "When's Phil coming?"

"At 11 tomorrow."

"That ought to give you plenty of time," she said, after a second's reflection.

"I think so," I said, "for he didn't ask for many revisions. When Dicky gets through helping me, will you—" I hesitated, and Lillian smilingly finished my sentence.

"Give it the once and twice," she purried. "That will be the easiest thing I do," she said. With her hand on the door, she blew me a kiss and then was gone and I drew the first free breath, or so it seemed to me, that had been mine since Philip Veritzen had arrived with his demand to see the play.

I did not find it easy to obey Dicky's injunction. I put on a negligee and lay down, it is true, but I could not go to sleep for some time. Indeed, it was but a few minutes after I finally drifted off to slumber before I was called back by Dicky's knock upon the door. I jumped up and called for him to come in and was at my place smoothing out the papers when he entered.

All ready for work," he said, taking the chair I indicated.

Very much so," I answered, adding the glib, "I've had a wonderful nap."

That's fine," Dicky beamed, and I felt repaid for the flu.

"Don't you think it would be a good idea," he said, "for you to lay aside those four pages in which Vickers appears and put in entirely new dialogue and action for the characters?"

"Yes, I have thought of that," I answered, but Mr. Veritzen did not object to the speeches of the rest of the characters. "Yet they are all predicated upon what Vickers says," Dicky argued, sensibly, so I should imagine it would be easier to scrap the whole thing. However, you might be able to salvage a lot of the dialogue from the other characters, but I shouldn't bank on it if I were you. I'd just count it as so much velvet."

I caught myself reflecting that his tone were as assured, his manner as didactic as if he had been the author of the play. I had a panicky little qualm at the prospect of working with him. I welcomed his aid, but I knew I would not feel as if I had honestly written the third act if he had supplied the speeches for these four pages—something of which I suddenly was afraid.

"Toss over the manuscript, please," Dicky said. "I want to lamp it a bit more before we go into action."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Those little buns at the back of the nape don't start any girl's soul songs a-tinkling. Just as well to nip off the ends of the hair, do one upward curl with the iron and let the coiffure go at that, though the neck washing fiesta does ravage the curly-cues and entail considerable work. Well, there's the permanent wave, ever the sweet comforter and solacement.

Desk workers need a daily walk to give the muscles of the feet sufficient exercise to keep them strong, to wash out lungs with fresh air, to ward off hip-spread, and to let backbones have a good stretch. One night a week in a gym class will quiet sizzling nerves, and improve circulation. Muscles must have a certain amount of activity if the female form is to stay divine and not get lumpy or humpy.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Poor School Work May Be Due to Physical Ills

Have you recently inspected your children's report cards? Are you satisfied with the school reports, or do you think there are too many poor marks?

In a recent investigation by the United States Public Health Service it was determined that physical defects are responsible for most poor school reports. Frequently they are due to too little of the right kind of food, to poor eyesight or to other physical troubles.

It is estimated that anywhere from one-quarter to one-third of the children in school are handicapped by malnutrition. This has a definite influence on the progress that school children make or do not make.

By "malnutrition" is meant the physical state that results when a child is not receiving the proper food. It means that there is a lack of the proteins, minerals, vitamins and other food substances which are essential to the normal development of bone, muscle, teeth and brain. Lack of these substances results in certain constitutional diseases, such as rickets and tends definitely to prevent mental progress.

Every child should be assured of a well-balanced diet. It must contain plenty of milk, eggs, meat, vegetables, fruits and whole cereals.

I know you will be astonished to learn that children showing signs of malnutrition often come from homes that can afford good food. The trouble is that these children eat too little of certain foods and too much of others. The parents are most often to blame. They are not familiar with the necessity of a well-balanced and varied diet or else they neglect to apply their knowledge.

Remember that even though the food be of good quality, it should not be eaten quickly, nor between meals. Neglect of these precautions, together with too little sleep and rest, and lack of exercise, may bring on the symptoms of malnutrition.

Very often the teacher will accuse little Johnny of being lazy. Little Johnny and many of his playmates may not pay attention to their work. These children are not lazy necessarily, but because they are not well nourished they cannot function normally. Children who are not well nourished tire easily. They act slow-witted, are ill-behaved and do not show the usual signs of brightness.

Another important thing to be considered is the child's sight or hearing. Very often the child has poor sight and it is difficult for him to study, or to see what the teacher writes on the blackboard. When there is any impairment in the hearing, it is difficult for a child to hear what the teacher has to say.

When overlooked and not recognized immediately, such handicaps place the child in the backward group. When the physical defects are recognized and remedied, the child's school work immediately improves.

I tell you about these matters because if you have received a report card that is not satisfactory, and particularly if your child has not been to a physician lately, I would suggest that you take the child to one.

Have the eyes and ears examined. See that the tonsils are not unduly enlarged, and that there is no difficulty in breathing because of enlarged adenoids. Have a complete examination, and see if it is not possible to improve any physical defect that your child may possess.

If you do this, you will immediately see a change in the school progress. You owe this to your child, and I am sure you are glad to do everything possible for your child's welfare.

Household Hints

Cut flowers will last longer if their ends are clipped with a sharp knife rather than scissors, as scissors compress the stem and the water is not taken up so readily.

The pleasure of reading a borrowed book is sometimes offset by a minor accident that may befall it. A spot of grease, for example, dropped accidentally upon the pages is most unfortunate—unless one knows how to remove it. Sponge the spots first with benzine, then place the page between two blotters and press with a hot iron. What grease is not removed with the benzine will come out with the heat and blotters.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after-effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound—you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Youthful Worship

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

We are all hero-worshippers to a large extent, and our adulation often takes on a more or less conscious imitation of the person admired. This is more especially true when we are very young.

The very young child plays he is a fireman because fire-fighting has caught his imagination and he has perhaps seen the picture of a brave man in his family newspaper lauded for his courage in saving lives, etc. The older boy builds miniature airplanes, meanwhile projecting himself into Lindbergh's place. The high school girl gazes with wide-open eyes at her favorite cinema star, vicariously being that star in real life. The adolescents read biographies and live for the moment lives of adventure or astonishing success.

All of which is as it should be except for one thing. The part of our heros' lives into which we usually project ourselves is at the moment of their success, the peak of their popularity and acclaim. We adults, if we stop to think, realize that that moment is but the one drop the essence of moments and hours, months and long years of TOIL and GRIT and endeavor.

The child doesn't take this into consideration, and we can help him to succeed along his own lines if we stress the fact that the supreme moment probably means little to the real artist, the true hero, the earnest adventurer. If he is the real thing he is probably too busy at the moment forging ahead to greater heights to even know it has arrived.

Try to make the child realize that back of all success lies first an aptitude for a particular line of work and second a determination and unwavering willingness to WORK at it.

Imitation is not bad unless we let the child merely imitate the success of his hero without learning the technique of HOW to win similar success for himself.

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XV.

"Whew! That's over. Last time I ever get married, Mrs. Sargent!" Ken drove around the corner, and halted under the shade of an immense walnut tree.

Lily Lou stiffened for a moment—Ken shouldn't kiss her like that . . . in the broad daylight, with the two towheaded little boys staring from a fence . . . "You're mine, all mine now," he whispered, his mouth on hers again. And Lily Lou forgot the little boys, and the heat, and the sunlight. . . .

"Oh, Ken, Ken, my darlingest . . . I love you so!"

Her wedding ring was a circlet of diamonds as she had hoped it would be. She had once known a girl who had one, and she had wanted hers to be like it, not just a diamond and then a space, and a space and a diamond the way May's was, nor plain, engraved platinum like Bess' . . .

"Now where do we go?" Ken was asking—

"I think we ought to see mother and dad first—"

"All right!"

Lily Lou's heart began to beat nervously when they drove into Woodlake, and turned off the main street, into the road that passed the Lansings' house.

It had never seemed so shabby. Even the flowers in the front yard looked ragged in the heat. The vines were powdered with heavy yellow dust, and old Thomas, the cat asleep on her mother's rocking chair on the porch, was minus an ear.

TELLS HER MOTHER

The screen door was unlatched — nobody ever locks doors in Woodlake . . . but the house seemed empty.

"Mother!" Lily Lou called. "Mother!"

She ran straight through the house, out to the backyard. Ken followed, more slowly. He knew that Lily Lou was afraid they were all out . . . he despised himself for hoping they were . . .

"Lily Lou—why—where did you come from?" Mrs. Lansing, scraps of blue and white checked cloth sticking to her old-fashioned white apron, emerged from the front bedroom, thimble still on her finger.

"From Oakland. Oh mother—I'm so glad."

"And Mr. Sargent, too . . . I'll just . . . But why, why did you get the day off, Lily Lou? Has anything happened? Has May . . ."

"No—no—no bad news." Lily Lou beamed. She couldn't hold back her news any longer. She held out her hand on which the circlet of diamonds twinkled. She was laughing and tremulous—"Oh, moth-er—we're married—Ken and I—"

It took a lot of explaining. Mrs. Sargent didn't understand at first. She was hurt—"You mean you're married already—you didn't have anyone at the wedding? Oh, Lily Lou!"

"But it was so sudden—we decided all at once. Oh, mother—say you're glad—"

DAD ARRIVES

Mrs. Lansing wiped her eyes with the hem of the white apron. Kissed her daughter, colored a little and kissed Ken . . . Lily Lou was happy again. "Now you are glad. I know you are, mother."

In the midst of it dad came home. He was wearing his old corduroy trousers that squeaked, and a faded blue shirt. Lily Lou hurled herself at him, hugged him tight, rubbed her satiny cheek against his sandy bristles—"Dad! congratulate us—I mean congratulate Ken—We're married. Ken and I—just now."

He wasn't as pleased as her mother. He said, "She's very young," looking sternly at Ken.

"I think her mind is made up," Ken said a little stiffly, and then he added, "You don't have to worry, sir. I'll make her happy. It's the only thing I want—to make Lily Lou happy—"

Lily Lou followed her mother into the kitchen. "Let's have something cold—" she suggested, "it's too hot!"

"No biscuits? It wouldn't take long for biscuits, dear—"

So they made biscuits, though the fire in the old range heated the kitchen red hot. Mrs. Lansing brought a ham, baked golden brown and dotted with cloves and peppers, from the cooler on the back porch. "I was going to take it to the church supper tonight—it's the annual Men's Dinner—but the ladies will have to get along without it. They always have twice as much as they need, anyway. Oh, Lily Lou! To think it's your wedding supper . . ."

LEAVE OLD HOME

They ate on the long dining room table, with the best linen table cloth, and all the best dishes brought down from the top shelf. "We ought to have sent for Bess," Mrs. Lansing worried. "Or your Uncle Eph. It seems selfish not to have any more than just us—"

"No—not selfish—just nice."

Ken said, "We're going to be selfish about our wedding. Why shouldn't we be? We got married to please ourselves, and we're telling you first, and after supper I'll send a wire home to my folks, and Lily Lou's sister, and then we'll be on our way—carefree—"

Mrs. Lansing got Lily Lou alone in the kitchen. "Dear, if you'd like to stay here tonight—your room—it's just been cleaned. I could pick up the sewing scraps in a minute—"

But she was visibly relieved when Lily Lou said that Ken had made other plans.

She kissed Lily Lou tenderly when they left. Dad could hardly bear it. He just waved, and then he went out back to feed his chickens, pretending it was just nothing—girls get married every day. . . .

Lily Lou looked over his shoulder when he wrote them. Added "Love" to May's.

"Just as you like, Ken—you're the driver—"

"Well, we'll have to get home soon enough. We'll probably be met with a brass band and 14 reporters, so maybe it's just as well to stay here, that is, if you don't mind—"

"No—I don't mind."

LILY LOU NERVOUS

But when they stopped in front of the "Lincoln Hotel," and saw the traveling salesmen ensconced in Mission rockers, behind the plate glass windows, her heart failed her. She stood staring at an enlarged photograph of Yosemite falls, over the desk, while Ken registered. She felt that every one of the rocking salesmen knew they were just married.

The elderly bellhop took their bags . . . would he notice that the initials on them were different? Maybe he'd think they weren't married at all! For some obscure reason this cheered her, she was able to smile—though a little weakly, when he pocketed Ken's tip, and they stood alone, and a little awkward in the Hotel Lincoln's "best front room."

It was a large room, with a large brass bed, immense golden oak bureau and chiffonier, and two rocking chairs, almost as big as those in the lobby downstairs.

"Simple, but not elegant," Ken said, kicking at red and green rugs.

"He feels sort of lost, too," she thought gratefully. Her silly fears, her tight self-consciousness slipped away. This wasn't a husband—the brand-new husband of a stranger's wedding . . . It was just her Ken—her Ken whom she loved.

He held out his arms, and she went into them happily . . . the funny room didn't matter, nor the telegrams, nor the future.

"We have each other, and that's all that counts," she told him.

"Yes, that's all that counts," he echoed, holding her closer, but her words chilled him a little because he knew that she, too, had been thinking about the wires, and home.

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing, pretty, young telephone operator lives with her married sister in moderate circumstances. She is torn between desire for an operatic career and love for the wealthy Ken Sargent, but, following a party at Ken's home, she realizes they are unsuited socially and decides to give him up. Ken overrules her objections and she accepts his proposal of marriage. They go to Woodlake for their license and the next day they return there and are married.

Now Go On

She felt that everyone knew they were just married.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Take What You Will

Take what you will and pay no heed
To any bar that stands
Between you and the righteous need
Of your triumphant hands.

Be certain that your fond desire,
The things which you should be,
Alone has power to lift you higher,
Alone can set you free.

The man who turns and doubts and gropes
And hesitates always,
Too weak of faith to trust his hopes,
Will tread no victor's ways.

Take what you will with knowledge sure
That life was meant for this;
That every aspiration pure
At last must win to bliss.

And man, serene, proud, bold,
Should wear existence as a king,
His robes of cloth of gold.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

IT HAPPENED in an eastern city not so long ago. A new theater was being opened in that town and plenty of the boys were taking it very seriously. It was a beautiful building and was to be an important part of the circuit to which it belonged.

To the district manager, this was undoubtedly one of the big moments in life. Not only was this another big theater under his supervision—but his son was to manage the house. He was proud of his boy—very proud. The main office had wanted an older man for this position, but the father had stuck to his guns.

He finally won his point. His boy was to manage the new house. He took the youth aside.

"My son," he said gravely, "your success in this position means everything to me. I fought hard to get you the job. Now that you have it, the rest is up to you."

The son smiled.

"Don't worry, dad," he responded. "I'll take care of everything."

The big day arrived. The theater was to be opened that night. And vast was the excitement when it was learned that the Big Boss was coming from New York to be present at the opening.

Arriving in Philadelphia, the Big Boss was met at the station by the district manager and driven directly to the new theater.

"I'll show you over the entire theater, sir," he said. "I'm sure you will want to see that first. It's a triumph, sir—a masterpiece of modernity."

"And one thing I assure you, sir. You've made no mistake in engaging my boy as the manager. He's a hustler, a go-getter, and has both feet upon the ground. You'll like him, sir."

The Big Boss nodded.

"I'm sure I will," he muttered. "Now let's have a look at my new theater."

So they walked about. The district manager pointed out various things of interest and discussed them with the Big Boss. Some 40 minutes later, they landed in front of a door with "PRIVATE" printed on it. The district manager threw out his chest.

"And this," he cried, "is the manager's office. In here you will find my boy hard at work."

He flung open the door and stepped in with the Big Boss directly behind him. That neither of them dropped dead from the shock is something of a miracle.

For there sat the youthful manager with his stenographer upon his lap and both of them stewed to the gills! . . .

THE GENIAL ARTHUR Brown has a story for you. It concerns a Pittsburgh man who made millions as the owner of a steel foundry. On the pretext of urgent business in New York, he escaped from his wife in Pittsburgh and came on to Broadway for a week of pleasure.

He found what he was looking for in the night clubs of this city. For six long and hectic nights he made whoopee in the cafes. He drank enough to float Andy Volstead on a six months' cruise. He made a host of friends. And on the seventh day some pals poured him into a train and sent him home to Pittsburgh.

The following morning, still nursing a hangover that should go down in history, our millionaire friend appeared in his steel foundry. The racket was terrific. Put all the dins you have ever heard in one room and you have a fairly good idea of the noise in that foundry.

The millionaire pressed his palms to his forehead and looked blearily about him. Finally, he lurched over to one of the foremen. Opening his pocketbook, he extracted a $5 bill and pressed it into the foreman's hand.

"See that I get a good table," he cried loudly. "And, by the way, what's the cover charge in here?" . . .

IT TOOK PLACE in a Southern penitentiary some three years ago, according to Frank Milton. The warden—a kindly soul if ever there was one—was examining five new prisoners in regard to their former vocations.

The object, of course, was to place each man in his proper groove. If he had been a laborer on the outside, he was placed on the rock pile. If he had been a clerk, he might be assigned to clerical duty. And so on.

The fifth and last prisoner in line was a huge colored man. He heard each man asked the same question.

"Sam Jones," called the warden. The colored man stepped forward.

"And you, Jones," asked the kindly warden, "what did you do before you were nabbed?"

The colored man offered a wide grin.

"Boss," he cried happily, "I was a marathon runner." . . .

THIS IS THE very short story of the fashion in which a certain little chorine recently lost her job. There are many ways in which ladies of the ensemble may find themselves without work. This, then, must be one of them.

Her name, let us say, was Irene. She was working—notice the was, if you please—for a young but extremely successful producer of musical shows. His name, for no reason at all, shall be Joe.

There is but one other character in the very short story. He is one of the young producer's star comedians. He is also a great favorite among the ladies. His name, let us say, was Max.

Joe, the producer, was a trifle fond of Irene, the chorine. A trifle too fond, if you don't mind. He gets that way over a lot of girlies. As soon as he loses one he grows fond of another. He is his own lost and fond department.

Now, it so happens that Max, although he works for Joe, frequently competes with the producer in affairs of the heart. Little Irene was no exception. As soon as he heard that Joe was falling for Irene he made it his business to take her out that very same night.

Somebody saw them together. Somebody always sees you on Broadway, especially when you don't want to be seen. Joe was tipped off that Max was out with Irene. So the following morning he called her on the phone.

"Hello, baby," cried Joe, as Irene answered in a sleepy voice, "this is Max."

The girl's voice leaped.

"O, hello darling," responded Irene happily. "How are you this morning, my sweetheart?"

The producer scowled blackly into the phone.

Irene's response floated sweetly over the wire.

"Nothing doing," she yodeled. "From now on I'm going to try to duck that bum. I hate him. If he wasn't the producer, I would never have gone out with him in the first place!"

That was enough for Joe. He hung up. And that is the very short story of the fashion in which a certain little chorine recently lost her job. . .

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS -:- Junior Komic Club

Children, whose parents represent almost every nation in the world, made up the vast audience at the Washington's Birthday celebrations of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club today. These celebrations were held at the following theaters: Arsenal, Belmar, Cameraphone, Enright, Etna, Harris, Harris (Diamond street), Kenyon, Manor, Mt. Oliver, Plaza, Rowland, Schenley, South Hills, Prince (Ambridge), Grand (Greensburg), State (Washington) and Memorial (McKeesport).

It was an inspiring sight to see these thousands of little Americans pledging allegiance to the Star-Spangled Banner and paying tribute to the Father of Our Country.

MT. OLIVER HARRIS

Supplementing the program put on by the Boy Scouts of Carrick at the Mt. Oliver Harris Theater was a stage show made up of military numbers presented by pupils of Vera Liebau's Studio of Dancing. Those participating in this part of the program were Dave Jeffries, who acted as master of ceremonies, Grace Rogan, Lillian Baumen, Doris Nepereny and Russell Hoeltje.

Other talented juveniles from Miss Liebau's studio, entertained at the Manor Chapter meeting today. They were Helen Simakis, Loretta Oslowsky, Andriana Simakis, Emma Berling and Virginia Quigley. The numbers presented added variety to a program of patriotic music, songs and recitations in which the Boy Scouts of the Squirrel Hill district played prominent parts.

Manager William Pearce gave a homecoming program for members of the Harris (Diamond street) chapter. These boys and girls have been attending meetings at the Davis Theater for the past few weeks, but from all indications were happy to be back at the original home of their chapter. Beginning today meetings will be held at the Harris every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

POOR BUTTERFLY BIDS FAREWELL TO FRISBY

Touching scene in Manchuria, WATCH about Congressman Frisby administering free advice to brave little Chinese woman on top of the Great Wall.

By Horace Walpole Frisby
Our Correspondent in Far East
Via Pneumatic Tube

MANCHURIA.—One of the questions frequently put to distinguished foreigners here is, "Congressman Frisby, when will you leave China?" I always take advantage of the occasion to give the Far East some sound advice and boost America. This country out here will never make much progress until they learn to appreciate a good speech when they hear it. No people ever became great who pushed a man around, and kicked him and jerked his necktie. Furthermore I do not like the practice of hoodlums who slip up behind an international figure and jerk his fedora down over his ears and eyes. Otherwise China is a great country.

Encouraging

The Conciliatory Attitude of the Philadelphia Company Group Raises Hopes—Comment on Local News.

What a pleasant thing it would be if the public utilities serving Pittsburgh would voluntarily reduce their rates and thus make it easier for the thousands of heads of families whose wages have been reduced or who are out of work to bear the burden! Without pledging anything of the sort Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company and its subsidiaries, has unquestionably raised hopes by his conciliatory statement to City Council.

Certainly the litigation necessary to force the utilities to cut their rates should be avoided if there is any way out of it. It would cost the taxpayers and the utilities hundreds of thousands of dollars and a decision might not be reached for years. Moreover, though many of the present rates are obviously unreasonable, it is by no means certain that the Public Service Commission would rule in favor of the public.

The Public Service Commission allows the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, which is associated with the Pittsburgh Railways Company, to have a monopoly of the bus business in Pittsburgh, and to charge 25 cents for a ride that costs only 10 cents in other cities. That does not make for confidence that it can be depended upon to protect the people from greedy utilities.

The Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association has so little confidence in the Public Service Commission that it does not consider rate suits as a means of getting justice but concentrates its energies on the effort to put men in the Legislature who will enact remedial legislation. It is to be hoped the association will not be diverted from this purpose by any concession that the utilities may offer.

President Phillips calls attention to the fact that utilities rates have declined since 1913 at a more rapid pace than the general cost of living. The explanation lies in the tremendous reduction that has occurred in the cost of generating and distributing electric power on a large scale. But in the Pittsburgh district, at least, the power companies have not yet lowered their rates to the level to which rates have fallen in many other cities.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt is looking into the legality of a proposal that the voters be asked to indicate in the April primary election their wishes as to the construction of a subway. The voters passed on the subject 12 years ago when they authorized a bond issue for the purpose, and there is no reason why they should be called upon to vote again. So far as the route is concerned, the City Transit Commission is the proper body to settle that question.

Of the need for a downtown subway which would take the trolley cars off the streets there can be no question. Traffic congestion becomes more and more of a problem. The subway would provide relief. It would require no tax payments for several years, and could be built more cheaply now than at other times because of the low price of materials and the abundance of labor.

The action of the finance committee of the Board of Public Education in indorsing the recommendation of Dr. Ben Graham, City Superintendent of Schools, that school auditoriums be made available for entertainments for charitable purposes, will meet with public approval. But applications for the use of school auditoriums will have to be carefully investigated, of course.

Commendable, also, is the plan of the Young Men's Christian Association to establish gardens in which unemployed men can raise vegetables next summer. Not one-tenth of the opportunities that Allegheny County offers for this sort of thing was made use of last summer. Some of the abandoned or uncultivated farms throughout Western Pennsylvania should be put to work again.

The Young Men's Christian Association is spon- soring another praiseworthy movement in the "Father and Son Week" observance starting tomorrow. There are many sharp differences between the two generations, and it is particularly important on that account that an effort should be made, as through the exercises planned for the coming week, to promote friendship and understanding between "dads and their lads."

Three cheers for the new Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia, Kern Dodge, for his promise to take a more liberal view of the Blue Law, "so that people will have something to do on Sunday besides sucking their thumbs!" Let ball games be played on Sunday, let the theaters be open, and there will be more cheerfulness and not a bit more wickedness. Indeed the Sunday speakeasy business is likely to fall off.

It is gratifying to note in the announcement of the candidacy of George M. Cook, of Sharpsburg, for the Legislature that he comes out boldly for modification of the Blue Law. Every candidate should tell how he stands on this matter. It is one of the important issues of the campaign and the people have a right to know what position will be taken by those who solicit their votes.

Anthony W. Bell, former chief of Fayette County detectives, who was tried and found not guilty of the murder of former Constable John Donohoe, is reported in a Buffalo dispatch to have signed a confession admitting his guilt. While it is regrettable that there should have been a miscarriage of justice, it is better that a guilty man should escape than that an innocent man should be punished.

The Washington bicentennial is to be ushered in officially in Pittsburgh with a public banquet in the William Penn Hotel Monday night, at which Secretary Wilbur, of the Department of the Interior; former Gov. Fisher and Congressman Hamilton Fish will speak. Pageants, dramas and public meetings will continue for 10 months in Washington's honor. Every Pittsburgher should take some part in this patriotic celebration.

On the eve of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will present, as might be expected, many interesting features relating to the first President. The Gravure Section will contain several pictures of local monuments to Washington, among them the equestrian statute in North Park.

Gilbert Stuart's famous painting of Washington will be reproduced in full color in the American Weekly Magazine Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It takes up a whole page and is suitable for framing. An interesting article about Washington will also be found in the magazine. Another article in the American Weekly that deserves your attention deals with John Garner, who may be our next President.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—After some 40 years of imitating a bean pole, I've suddenly started to fatten up. My weight has been 148—no more no less—since I was 21, but I now tip the beam at 158. And what makes it all so silly, my paunch has come out in a cute little knot.

A passing nit-wit this morning flipped: "Hi, pot belly!" The truth is I do feel something like a lean whip snake that has gulped down a crab-apple. But all I need is to jell a little more. Then my loose-gaited walk will become a waddle and waddle they have in the back room?

The worst of growing fat is the strain on the vest and waistline buttons. You arise from the dinner table and ping!—a button flies across the room. When I hear a sudden click along the street, I plunge both hands in my pants pockets and heave upward. No, siree, not with my legs!

Hitherto, I've admired the jovial rotundity of such fat rascals as Frank McIntyre and Big Bill Edwards. But they can have it. I can't take it. With only 13 pounds of extra ballast I can imagine what they suffer. Already existence is a flutter of short pants. And a few cock-eyed vests.

And have I had weskit trouble? At this writing, only one can be buttoned for more than two buttons and I have to hold myself in to make them. The only lucky break about the whole thing is that all my clothes are double breasted and hide the vests.

But the way vests are being shortened, I may be able to snip them off at the second button and struggle along until spring planting. Anyway if the pessimists are right, we all go back to overalls shortly, anyhow. Maybe I just burst out of my clothes at the right time.

One thing about fat men. People always try to make them comfortable. They seem so helpless they get best chairs, and at theater parties, seats on the aisle. By next fall, maybe some dear old lady will be taking me on for a little mothering. I'm pretty much neglected.

It's odd how often you sneak off to weigh yourself when picking up weight. I'm the best customer of a penny machine on Lexington avenue and on fete days I patronize the swell nickel machine at the Grand Central entrance. I read in an etiquette book that "people who matter" do not weigh in public. But I'm tired of The 400 anyhow. Sometimes I wish debutantes would leave me completely alone. Them and the Vanderbilts.

* * *

In the dear, dead days grandma used to take me down to the big scales in front of Neal's flour mill. We would buy a dime's worth of mixed chicken feed, get weighed free and I'd haul the feed home in my little red wagon. (Always helping the folks.) I remember the dusty miller used to pinch my wan cheeks and say: "Bub, you need a little fattenin'." And to grandma he would observe: "He's puny, mam, you are going to have trouble raising him." I'd like to barge across his scales now, but they were painted green and green does something to me. You know, takes the life out of my complexion.

Like most fat men, I suppose some morning I'll find I've turned tenor. I'm a natural alto. Although if you get me drunked up I'll croon. That is, I used to in the days when we gathered on Saturday nights to play saloon. At that, I'll bet I can out-croon the present crop of crooners. Listen: "Mmmm mm de deedle di la laladee mm and you in my arms!" What am I getting myself into anyway? That sounds like an old fool with woman hunger. What I crave is vittles—cold macaroni, thick bean soup, floating island. Grr-r-r!

Maybe I'd better do my card tricks. Did I show you the one where I riffle the deck, and out pops the very one you're thinking of? Boo! It's pretty scarey. Perhaps I better cut out meat. No! I'll cut out nothing, even though I get too big for all my clothes and too fat to walk. I'd enjoy sitting around in a hay mow in a Mother Hubbard and rocking myself silly for a year or so anyway.

* * *

After all, Paul Whiteman got fat and he's all cleared up, and look at Fannie Hurst! Most of my life I've just been something to hang hats on. Half the time I've been afraid to walk over sidewalk gratings for fear I might slip through. Make mine roast goose and bring a side order of giblets.

LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

God, hold me steady!
Keep me seeing straight
Through all the darkness
Of these treach'rous years

I learned in childhood
Certain clear cut rules:
Was taught that some few things
Were always right—
Strong, simple things
Like honor, kindliness,
Clean living, courage,
Generosity.
And faith in You.
These things, they told me,
Were worth all they cost,
And would withstand
The shock and shift of Time.

But now—I wonder;
Now I am dismayed;
For all things change,
And I have lost Your hand.
The past has vanished
With its simple code.
The present whirls around me
In a fog.
I fumble blindly,
Fail to find a light
And cannot, sometimes,
Tell the Wrong from Right.

And, from the turmoil,
Voices mock and sneer,
And ask what honor buys,
Or decency.
They cry, "So get it
"While the getting's good;
"You've but one life;
"Don't throw this chance away!"

And other voices,
Soft and snakey wise,
Uphold new standards;
Say: "The times have changed.
"Your father's code
"Was proper for a child,
"But now, you're older.
"Turn from fairy tales
"And dare to face
"The ruthless facts of life."

Wond'ring where to turn,
And so I falter,
While, through the fog,
The tricky half-truths burn
Like will-o'-wisps

God, hold me steady!
Help me in my plight!
And in the darkness
Set your Laws alight,
Like steadfast stars,
To guide me safely home.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Some people have great faith in you.

It may be only your wife or your mother stands back of you.

If all others distrust you, your mother excuses your weakness or sin.

She never believes you to be as bad as you are.

You may be under temptation in a position of trust.

But sometimes you play with an idea for getting money and you call it a loan that you can repay.

The mental torture afterward is worse than going without what that money would buy and you never could get away from it.

Think of the disgrace to mother or other dear ones if you should fall.

Your faithful wife—your loved and loving wife, your boys and girls—they are the ones who would suffer most.

Be faithful to those who trust you.

Marry-Go-Round

The Lowdown on Women

When a woman falls in love, she shows a positive genius for discovering original ways of making a fool of herself.

It may mean nothing, but it's funny how quickly a man's love blossoms at a house-party, when he knows that his time is limited and that he can return the girl's heart on Monday morning practically unscathed.

A woman is never conscious that the bell has rung on her youth until all her friends begin assuring her that she is "looking younger, every day." A man is not aware that he has passed the dead-line, until women stop asking him why he doesn't marry, and begin asking him why he "never married."

A man is tempted through his senses; that's why his head is his weakest spot. A woman is tempted through her emotions, that's why her heart is her weakest spot.

Trying to concentrate on a kiss and a steering-wheel at the same time, is about as dangerous for a man, as trying to run a job downtown and a home uptown is for a woman. In both cases, the result is likely to be a smash-up.

Among the water-sports, in which the modern girl is interested, wish-water doesn't seem to figure very prominently.

The average man's kisses are first experimental, then rapturous, then tender, then casual—and last, charitable.

The dumber the woman, the louder the chatter—if you get what I mean.

An optimist is a girl who goes through college in the fond delusion that man will respect her for her "intellect," and admire her for her brains. Minerva, the Goddess of Wisdom, never married—because she didn't get a CHANCE.

Inflation: Hoarding: Results, Not Causes

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The bank bill intended to hurry business recovery has passed the House with a business-like dispatch that must satisfy the most severe critics of debate. Three hours were allowed for the discussion. If this measure will restore prosperity speedily no one will doubt that the Democratic House has put country above party, for the revival of business will be credited, not to the Democrats, nor to co-operation, but to the Hoover administration.

In these days of dire danger to us all, no party can afford to play small politics with human misery. And that the Democratic House has not done. Postponing purely political speeches, and proper and deserved criticism of the blunders of the administration until later, it has taken up every measure proposed by the President, considered it in a broad way, and acted upon it with a minimum of delay.

Legislative action on the measure drew near a close late yesterday when the Senate enacted it in form differing somewhat from that approved by the House, and sent it to conference.

There is no doubt that currency inflation is the purpose of this bank measure; and whether it is to be a reasonable or an unwholesome and dangerous inflation will depend upon the Federal Reserve Board. That board did not act to the extent of its power for the protection of the public in 1928 and 1929; but perhaps it has learned its lesson.

A Note of Warning

Meanwhile the mere pendency of the bill, with the certainty of its enactment, has had an effect which is not wholesome. Stock market-minded statesmanship, such as we have had in the Treasury from the day Mr. Mellon entered, still confuses wild speculation with prosperity; and someone circulated some exaggerated reports on the effect of the bank bill. This resulted in another wild flurry on the stock market, and Senator Glass sounds a note of warning:

"The people who have sent out these exaggerated reports about this bill and started another riot of speculation on the stock exchange are very culpable and are causing the loss of many millions of dollars to persons who have been utterly misinformed as to the requirements of this bill."

This use of false reports by the sharks among speculators is not new; it makes one of the interesting stories of the very first days of the republic.

Confidence Must Be Restored

While this flurry of the market was on, and the moron-minded heaved a sign of relief that "prosperity is coming back"—

Not a jobless man was being put to work.

Not one eviction order was canceled.

And the merchants observe no increase in their trade.

And no manufacturer put on extra help because of an increase in orders.

Prosperity depends primarily upon trade—at home and in foreign markets; and, artificially, the administration has destroyed our foreign markets. There can be no revival of home trade, so vital to the merchants, so long as 8,000,000 men are out of work, involving 24,000,000 men, women and children who no longer have the money with which to buy.

This appalling situation is responsible for the hoarding—and the hoarders will not put their money in circulation either through the purchase of goods, or stocks, or by putting it in the banks, until confidence is restored.

The restoration of trade depends upon jobs for the vast army denied the right to work; and these will not get work until there is a greater need to manufacture goods; and there will be no increased demand on the factory until there is an increased demand at the store; and there will be no increased demand at the store until jobless men get work.

With the manufacturer unable to furnish jobs, the government could, on needed public work, through a prosperity loan—but it won't.

'A Great and Wise Leader'

And how is Mr. Hoover's committee going to get this hoarded money out of hiding? The hoarders are not misers; they would rather make money on their money through investment; but they would rather have what they have, than to lose it. The only way to get this money out is to restore the confidence of the owners—for it is their money—in the government and the leaders in government and finance.

So the committee will make a "house to house canvass"—presumably asking everyone if they are hoarding.

Some will lie.

Some will say: "It is none of your business."

Some will admit it, and, when asked why, they will reply that they have seen so much skullduggery and deception they no longer have faith in anything.

When the committee tells them that in the President we have "a great and wise leader" who is also an engineer, and that the administration promises a return of prosperity, they may answer that the President promised an "elimination of poverty" if elected, and that there was a "house to house" canvas on business streets in 1928 by men who said Hoover would mean "prosperity."

And they may quote a long string of "reassurances" from administration spokesmen since 1928 that sound "fishy" now. Even the canvassers may blush a bit.

'American Relief' Measures

All the "American relief" measures of the administration have to do with money, and none with men.

It has concerned itself with—

All this is important and desirable, and the administration has smashed all precedents, and trampled like an army with banners over the "American way" in rendering service here.

Meanwhile private business has been concerning itself with men—forcing wages down to keep dividends up.

The 'Best Minds' None Too Good

The truth is, as Cordell Hull so well said in the Senate the other day, that the administration is still dealing superficially with the crisis—concerning itself with results and not with causes. It has stubbornly set its face against even an effort to revive our foreign trade; it refuses even to consider or study the silver problem in its relation to our trade in the silver countries of the Far East; it refuses even to attempt to find a way to save the mining industry; and long ago it washed its hands of the millions denied the inalienable right to work.

The crisis is not due to policies followed in the last three years alone; the crash came because of the accumulated policies of stupidity and selfishness in the last 11 years. The "Best Minds" that came in with Harding have been none too good.
